BIG EXHIBITION OF PLAYGROUND WORK

Annual Exhibit Will be Held in the Harrington Building—Elaborate
Program for Closing Day

The largest exhibition of industrial work done by playground children ever seen in this city will open in the Harrington building in Central street next Wednesday afternoon. Mr. John A. Hunnewell, manager of the Lowell Electric Light corporation, has volunteered the use of the store and will light it free of charge. The exhibition will be held Wednesday afternoon and Thursday afternoon as well. Mr. Dudley L. Page will supply, free, all the tables necessary for the exhibit. The fact that the affair will be the largest of its kind ever seen in Lowell is due purely to the generosity of mill agents, the Middlesex Women's club and Mrs. E. W. Trull, who has given unsparingly of her time and money.

275 LIVES LOST CITY HALL NEWS

Toll of Tropical Storm
That Visited Texas 10
Days Ago

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 25.—According to a careful checking up today of all published figures based on official statements from the cities and larger towns and localities involved and accounting for all persons listed as missing who subsequently have been found safe, the tropical storm that visited the Texas coast 10 days ago took 275 lives, 205 on land and 69 on water. In addition the same lists show 102 other persons still unaccounted for.

The entire number of dead probably never will be known as scores of unidentified victims were buried.

14 PERSONS KILLED

Powerful Wireless Station at Cape San Antonio, Cuba, Damaged by Storm

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 26.—Fourteen persons met death near Cape San Antonio, Cuba, and the powerful wireless station there was badly damaged and made unfit for immediate use by the recent tropical hurricane. Capt. H. G. Borden of the schooner Caroline brought news on his arrival today.

Capt. Borden sighted the schooner Explorer, from St. Andrews, Fla., after the storm, badly damaged, and towed the vessel to Cape San Antonio.

The only white inhabitants at Cape San Antonio are employees of the United Fruit Co., stationed there to maintain and operate the wireless station. Very few natives live near the western tip of the island. The wireless station has been cut off from communication since the storm.

POUND STERLING DROPS

FOREIGN EXCHANGE MARKETS
PLUNGED INTO DEMORALIZATION
AGAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Foreign exchange markets were plunged into demoralization again today by a wave of foreign bills that broke early in the business day and threatened to carry the rate down to depths hitherto untouched.

The English pound sterling, usually the standard of world finance at $4.87 was selling within the first hour at $4.64 1/4, and one sale, it was reported without confirmation, had been made at $4.64, the lowest figure which sterling has yet reached in this market. France broke to 5.33, five cents under yesterday's close, on the first transaction recorded. Lires dropped two cents to 8.14. German money, for a reason not seen on the surface of the market, was worth more than yesterday. Reichmarks selling at $1 1/4.

Brest-Litovsk, the great Russian stronghold which has been the apparent chief goal of the Austro-Germans in their advance after the taking of Warsaw, has been captured by the Teutons.

Taken by Storm
The Russians gave up the fortress, the Berlin official statement says, after the works on the western and northwestern front had been stormed and the attacking forces had succeeded in entering the central defenses.

A great enveloping movement has been in progress for some time past which threatened to cut off Brest-Litovsk from the east. Recent semi-official intimations from Petrograd have been that the Russians were preparing to give up the stronghold.

French Air Raid
An air raid of unprecedented proportions, so far as reported has been made by the French who sent 62 aeroplanes over a German arms factory to the north of Saarbrücken in Rhineland Prussia. More than 150 bombs, 30 of them of large calibre, were dropped, "with precision," the French statement says.

SINK NO MORE SHIPS WITHOUT WARNING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, conferred with Secretary Lansing nearly an hour this morning and while both refused to discuss their meeting in any way, it was understood the ambassador reiterated that it was not the intent of the German government that submarine commanders already have been instructed to sink no more channel vessels without warning.

It is understood that Germany, at the same time, will revive her proposal for a modus vivendi for relaxation of British restrictions on neutral commerce. In German quarters it was said that this step, which had been in contemplation in Germany for some time, could now be announced because of the victories in Poland. German officials, it was explained, consider that the victories to their arms in the campaign against the Russians permit Germany to recede a step on the sea.

Commissioner Putnam at city hall include the United States Bunting Cricket club, an addition to its clubhouse. The addition will be 30 by 32 feet and two stories in height and the estimated cost is $1000.

Walter Hutchinson has been granted a permit for the erection of a dwelling on East Sixth street, near Mt. Pleasant street. The building will be 22 by 30 feet, 2 1/2 stories, 6 rooms, reception hall, pantry and bath, and the estimated cost is $2000.

Steel Filing Cases
Commissioner Putnam called for bids today on steel filing cases for the vaults at city hall. It was the commissioner of public records who ordered the filing cases installed and that was back in 1913 when Lawrence Cummings was commissioner of the department of public property and licenses. The sum of $3000 was appropriated and part of that amount has already been spent for work done in the auditor's and treasurer's offices.

The cases to be installed now will include the vaults in the school department, charity department, supplies department, buildings department, board of health, state aid, registrars of voters, city solicitor's office and department of streets and highways. There will also be additions to the steel equipment in the auditor's office.

GREAT MILITARY PARADE IN HONOR OF GOVERNORS

Entire State Militia and Naval Forces Headed by Gov. Walsh
March Through Boston Streets

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Boston had the appearance of a city in war time today.

The entire volunteer militia of Massachusetts was assembling this morning and making ready to march in review this afternoon before the governors and former governors of nearly 30 states, who are here attending the annual governors' conference.

Massachusetts was prepared to show the distinguished visitors the strength and preparedness of its citizen soldiery. Seven thousand men, all armed and equipped for actual service; 1000 horses and mules a field train of 30 wagons and many machine guns was the brilliant spectacle to be presented in a parade through the business streets in honor of the visiting executives.

Three Mile Parade
The weather was ideal for marching—fair and cool. It was estimated that the parade line would extend three miles and that it would take more than two hours to pass a given point. The route of march was gaily decorated ed with flags and bunting and most of the business establishments in the city had declared a half holiday.

Gov. Walsh at Head of Line
Boston common resembled a big armed camp. An infantry company had spent the night there beneath shelter tents, a field hospital had spread canvas over 150 cots, and an army bakery was in full operation.

The visiting governors and their staffs planned to ride in the parade and then review it in company with the former governors. Secretary Daniels, Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles, prominent army and navy officers and the entire Massachusetts legislature. Governor Walsh, commander-in-chief of the militia, had a place at the head of the parade.

Speakers at Business Session
Aside from the parade the program of the governors' conference included automobile trips, luncheons and a business session. At the latter the speakers and their topics were "Abolition of

STRIKE IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 26.—Nearly 200 members of the Teamsters' union and between 50 and 70 non-union sympathizers went out on a strike for higher wages today, after the state board of conciliation and arbitration had failed to adjust the differences between the contending parties. The controversy is largely over the recognition of the teamsters' union.

Strikebreakers were employed in a few instances but no disorder was reported. Union officials say that members of the building trades unions and other union men will refuse to handle any material delivered by strike breakers.

Later he started walking up the tracks in the direction of Boston and at a point near the roundhouse he was struck by the Bar Harbor express. This was shortly after 12 o'clock this morning. OFF TO BOSTON PARADE

Local Military Companies Left in Full Ranks This Morning — The Roster

The Lowell companies of the National Guard of Massachusetts left this morning for Boston, where they will take part in the monster parade in connection with the general mobilization of the volunteer state troops as ordered by Gov. Walsh.

The trip to the Hub was made by special train, which included a Pullman for the ten horses to be utilized by the mounted men of the Lowell companies. The train rolled out of the station shortly after 9.30 o'clock.

The members of Companies K, G and C of the Sixth regiment and M of the Ninth as well as those of Tabor's Sixth Regiment band assembled at their respective quarters at the armory at 8 o'clock and the final arrangements for the trip were made. The boys later gathered in the drill shed, while the band took a position in Westford street in front of the armory and at 9.15 o'clock, the "Forward march" signal was given by Maj. Colby T. Kittredge. The band struck up an air and the soldiers marched to the railroad station by way of Westford, Chelmsford, Thordike and Middlesex streets.

Hundreds of people were lined along the course of the parade and the marching soldiers were viewed with keen interest. The sidewalks surrounding the railroad station were lined up with people and among the spectators to give the "boys" a send-off was Hon. Samuel P. Hadley, former justice of the local police court.

The special train with the stall-car attached in the rear rolled on track 3 at 9.55 o'clock and was immediately boarded by the militiamen who had gathered in front of the American Express Co. office. At 9.55 the train moved out.

The roster of the parade from the armory to the station was as follows: Major Colby T. Kittredge, Battalion Adjutant Harry G. Sheldon, Regt. Comm. Sergt. H. J. Roberts, Batt. Sergeant, Major George D. Cole, Capt. Harold Patton, ordnance department, Eighth Infantry, Capt. Lewis G. Hunt, commissary officer, Sergt. Maj. C. M. Miner, drum major; Batt. C. M. Winifred C. MacBrayne.

Tabor's Sixth Regiment band, Z. I. Bissonette, chief musician, came next and the mascot of the band, Amos Bennett, was right on deck. Company K came next with Capt. J. N. Gregg in command. Then Company G with Capt. Walter R. Jones, Company C with Capt. W. Peterson, and Company M, Lieut. D. E. Christian. It was figured that about 95 per cent. of the men were present at the armory, making a total with the musicians of about 275 men.

The run to the North station took about 45 minutes and upon reaching Boston the men disembarked at the corner of Otter and Beacon streets, while

It is expected that 3500 children will participate in the exercises and the park commissioners will award nominal prizes to the winners of the various events.

Hoodlums are at Work

There has been more or less thieving and other brands of rowdiness going on at the Alken street grounds nights, and it was stated today that the hoodlums are at work again. A night or two ago they broke into a chest and took a quantity of playground supplies. They forced the lock, tore the chest and it will go hard with them if the police succeed in ferreting them out.

to the state department to supplement a telegram of Tuesday or the overnight news dispatches containing the German chancellor's statement, inferring that a settlement of a character satisfactory to the United States probably would be made in the case of the Arabic. The ambassador, however, reiterated his previous disclaimer of any intent that Americans should be harmed and it was indicated that today's conference was arranged by the state department rather than by the ambassador.

Count Bernstorff's visit to Secretary Lansing and the advice from Berlin containing the German chancellor's statement have put a much better face on the whole situation. There is a notable relaxation of tension at the White House and at the state department. It was made plain at both places today that while officials were much encouraged by the apparent desire of Germany to avoid a break with the United States, the president will not finally decide on his course until he has before him a definite statement of the Berlin government's intentions. It seems certain now that there will be diplomatic exchanges in the Arabic case.

CHANCELLOR GIVES HOPE
BERLIN, Aug. 26, via London, 11 a. m.—The Associated Press is in a position to state on the best authority that the Arabic incident may be considered as eliminated as a source of discord between Germany and America, or at least is regarded by the German government in that light. Moreover, Germany in its desire to continue its friendly relations with the United States had adopted before the sinking of the Arabic a policy designed to settle completely the whole submarine problem as affecting America, on the basis of good will and mutual understanding.

This is shown clearly by the statement of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg last night to the Associated Press, particularly by his concluding remark to the effect that not until all the circumstances in connection with the sinking of the Arabic had been cleared up would it be possible to say "whether the commander of one of our submarines went beyond his instructions." In which case Germany would give complete satisfaction to the United States. Furthermore, in the course of the conversation, the chancellor twice again referred to the instructions given to submarine commanders. He did not specify in detail the nature of these instructions, but it may be said that they are designed to prevent a repetition of the Lusitania case and to provide for the opportunity of escape for American non-combatants upon torpedoed ships which the United States desires.

Asks Suspension of Judgment
Having given these instructions, Germany asked suspension of judgment on the Arabic case until the facts were ascertained, being confident that it would be shown that the sinking of the vessel was not an unprovoked attack without warning by a German submarine but was attributable either to a mine explosion or to some action of the vessel itself.

Desires to Maintain Friendship
It is not permissible to quote remarks made by the chancellor in the course of conversation, other than the formal statement which he made. It may be said, however, that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg showed genuine interest in the state of feeling in the United States concerning the sinking of the Arabic and expressed the hope that the American people would not form an opinion on the basis of one side of the story. He spoke with emphasis of Germany's desire to maintain the friendship of America.

The chancellor appeared to be in good health and spirits, and greatly encouraged by the successes achieved by the Germans in the eastern campaign. The interview necessarily was of short duration, as the chancellor was hurrying away for a conference with Emperor William at his field headquarters.

PARTIES WENT TO BEACH

WOOD'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE AT REVERE BEACH—FOUR OTHER CARS FOLLOWED

One special car loaded with students and friends of Wood's Business college left Merrimack square at 9.30 o'clock this morning enroute for Revere beach where they held their annual outing. On the arrival of the party at the resort bathing was indulged in by all, after which a sumptuous shore dinner was served. Following the dinner an informal musical was carried out to which every one contributed and this feature proved decidedly enjoyable. In the afternoon a list of sports was run off, the attractions along the boulevard were visited and dancing was enjoyed. The start home will be made at an early hour this evening.

Four special cars loaded with students and children left the square shortly after the car carrying the Wood party for the same resort on the regular weekly excursion conducted by the Bay State Street Railway company.

Lynchings As Protection
"Three years ago I had the pleasure of addressing this conference in Richmond. My remarks were telegraphed throughout the nation, and I was heralded to the world as a chief executive who advocated mob violence. I do not propose to go into a discussion of that here; it is entirely beside the point. I am here to tell you that the lynching of a man for the sake of civilization, while the practice of this 'third degree' violates the letter of our constitution at its most vital point and is a blow to the

HOME AFTER 30 YEARS

Patrick W. Daley of No. Dakota
Visits His Parents on Cedar St.
—Prominent Railroadman

Hale and hearty and with the same genial disposition that won him countless friends in his boyhood days, Patrick W. Daley, a former resident of this city, but now of Dickinson, No. Dakota, after an absence of nearly thirty years, returned to Lowell to pay respect to his aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Daley of Cedar street. He arrived here Monday and as he stepped off the train at the Hinchey station, he recognized Police Officer Jack Conway, a boyhood pal.

"Gee whiz, but this burg has changed since I last saw it in 1886," said Mr. Daley, after taking a peek at the Federal Shoe Shop and the surrounding buildings. "Yes, it has changed some," replied the policeman, "but wait till you see the city hall, the post office, the Memorial building, the new Sun building, the magnificent churches and other structures down town, and if you've got anything in Dakota to equal them I'll eat a railroad tie."

Mr. Daley reluctantly begged to be excused as he was bubbling over with joy in anticipation of meeting his parents, and after promising the guardian of the law that he would call on him at his earliest opportunity, he hastened to his parents' home on Cedar street, the place where he was taught the golden rule by a loving mother and kind and industrious father, both of whom are well along in years. But time has dealt kindly with them and today they are in excellent health. The meeting of parents and son was most affectionate and all three were superlatively happy.

When supper was ready he occupied the same seat at the table as he did nearly thirty years ago and enjoyed the best meal he had partaken since he last sat at his mother's table. During the evening friends by the score called to see Mr. Daley and to welcome him back to the old home oven for a visit.

Last evening he was the guest of the Hillside Associates and it was most reception. In introducing Mr. Daley to the members, Chairman Eastman said the club was being honored by the presence of "a man who left Lowell practically penniless and by grit and perseverance made good." When Mr. Daley arose to speak he received an ovation and after thanking the members, he spoke of his travels. "When Horace Greeley said 'Go west young man' he certainly gave good advice, for there is every opportunity for all who want to roll up their sleeves and go to work. But if you don't intend to work keep away, for the western people, although noted for their hospitality, have no patience with a drone. I've seen immense fields of corn and oats actually burn up for want of men to harvest the crops. I know several men who made their way west on the 'humpers', who, after working on the farms a couple of years and saving their money, went into the cattle raising business on a small scale and today these men are among the biggest and most successful ranch owners in the west. I was in 1886 when I left Lowell. I went to New York and followed railroading. I gradually worked my way west until I finally settled in Dickinson, No. Dakota, where I am superintendent of transportation of the Northern Pacific railroad. I kept in touch with Lowell affairs by reading the Lowell Sun, and my boys, but I do wish that 'Quarter of a Century' column, for it brings me back to the good old days when with Charley Farrell, Dick Conway, Billy Hawes and all the old boys I played on the South common."

An appetizing luncheon was served and a musical and literary program was carried out, as follows: Songs by Bert Mitchell, George Sawtelle, Joe Coleman, Ted Buckley and Phil Riley; recitation, "How I Caught the Biggest Fish," Ben Williston; Bryan's "Cross of Thorns" speech, Andrew Swanson; duet, "The Fishermen," John Finnegan and Joe Hockney; buck and wing dance, George Davis; Highland fling, Dick Carter and Capt. McNulty. Mr. Daley will remain in Lowell for another week and will then return to the west.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

"Get the best play obtainable, regardless of expense," was the order that the new owners of the Opera House issued to the local manager, and that the latter has made good on the order is attested by his selection. He did go to considerable expense, but as he was authorized to do so, he feels that the public will show its appreciation by turning out in large numbers to greet his introductory offering.

"Within the Law" is the play that will be presented during the opening week. It comes to Lowell with a list of recommendations a mile long and as several of the Emerson players already appeared in this powerful drama they are well qualified to give a correct interpretation of it.

When Bayard Veiller wrote "Within the Law" he did not realize, perhaps, that he was writing the stage play that was destined to make phenomenal and enduring theatrical history. Its record proves its assertion. "Within the Law" opened at the Ellipse theatre in New York City one night with little known of it in that exciting and capricious metropolis, save that it was a melodrama by an unknown author. Two years later, it was still running and the play and author's name were known the world over.

The Emerson players who will offer the production make up without any doubt, the finest stock company in all New England and the roster includes stock stars who are well known throughout the country. Miss O'Day, the leading lady, who will be seen as Mary Turner, the character originally portrayed by Jane Cowell, is a gifted actress. Miss O'Day has had wonderful stock experience, having been in Kansas City for two seasons. Later with the Matinee players in Union, N. Y., and with several other high class organizations. She is a beautiful blonde, young and talented and displays a fondness for the newest creations in dress.

Home Barton, the leading man, is sure to become a great favorite with Lowell audiences. Mr. Barton has been with several big Broadway attractions and has also been identified with some of the best stock companies in the United States. For three full years he was the leading man at the Empire theatre in Providence and later with the Matinee players in Hartford, scoring wonderful success in all cities.

Dora Booth, the second woman, is one of the best stock actresses of today and everywhere that she has played, she has been a great favorite. Miss Booth has been with the Keith and Toll interests for several seasons and her long stock experience will make her a valuable member of the Emerson players. Carmen Davenport, the character man has been with many stock and road productions and for two years played "Little Women" under the management of William A. Brady. Clara Sidney, the character woman, is another who will become a favorite. Miss Sidney has just finished a three years' engagement with Oliver Moros, playing the character part in "Peg O' My Heart" with great success. David Goodwin, the ingenue has been with several Cohen and Harris productions, originating the ingenue role in "Get Rich Quick Wallingford" and later appearing under A. H. Wood's management in "Petash and Perimutter."

Joseph Crehan, who made such a great hit in Boston all last summer while playing with the Majestic players at the Majestic theatre in Boston will also be seen with the Emerson players. Crehan is well known throughout New England and has many friends right here in Lowell.

Frank Wright, who will direct the Emerson players is an exceptionally clever director and is rated one of the best producers in stock. He has been with the Duquesne stock in Pittsburg and with the Casino, Dallas, Texas, at the latter place directing such stars as Lily Cahill, who appeared in "Under Cover" and Orme Calhara, who was one of the stars in "Within the Law."

Seats for the opening performances are on sale.

HERMIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The internationally famous comedian Sam Bernard will appear at this cool theatre today, tomorrow and Saturday in his latest comedy hit, the five-act Paramount picture entitled "Poor Schmaltz." This famous fun maker and laugh producer makes his screen debut in this screaming carnival of merriment. As "Poor Schmaltz" he renders one of the most laughable characterizations of his career. He takes the part of a persecuted and persistent wooer of an American heiress. It relates his distressing but exuberantly funny adventures and the humor grows until he is worn out and exhausted with laughter when the play is all over. A play with more than the usual degree of gripping interest is the three-act Lubin picture, "The Witness," which will also be shown during the remainder of this week. The Paramount feature pictures and the entertaining western drama, "Broncho Billy" will complete the program.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Emmy Wehlen, the beautiful young Viennese actress, will make her debut locally in a screen production, at the B. F. Keith theatre, this afternoon, and twice daily during the remainder of the week will be the offering. The title of the photo-drama to be offered is "When a Woman Loves," and it was specially written for the star by Charles Moran. Originally this picture had a different name, but when the picture was about half completed it was discovered that the title had been previously copyrighted by another writer. The first title was then dropped, but work went on in the making of the remaining part of the picture just the same. But when the completed picture was reeled off that Miss Wehlen exclaimed "When a Woman Loves," would be a good title of it. And that title has stuck to the picture ever since. Somehow, it admirably fits the subject in hand. Supporting the little actress is Arthur Asher, the film star, while there are 34 other principles. It should be stated that Miss Wehlen originally came to America to appear at the New York Casino in the musical comedy "Marriage a la Carte." She was a great drawing card, and will undoubtedly appeal to lovers of motion pictures. Five shorter pictures will also be shown. Beginning Monday of next week the regular vaudeville season opens, with several specially selected acts.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Dorothy Donnelly in "The Thief" and Henry B. Walthall in "The Woman Hater" are the central figures of the bill for the last three days of the present week at the Academy of Music. As the evening of the title role in "Madame Donnelly" is best remembered. She has a part well suited to her talents in "The Thief," as Academy patrons will immediately realize. Mr. Walthall is assisted by Edna Mayo and Bryant Washburn. While the production is a comedy-drama, it calls for the portrayal of all deeper emotions, and Mr. Walthall is admirably adapted to the part of "The Woman Hater," which he assumes. Tonight is "amateur night" at the Academy. Ten or 12 candidates for prizes have been booked, and all will be given an opportunity to show what they can do. The amateurs are intensely funny. If you have never seen them perform, don't miss tonight's program.

AT THE KASINO

A good minstrel show is always a great attraction. The managers of the Kasino know this and hence have booked the South Ends to appear at the popular place of amusement tomorrow evening. The South End minstrels are good in every way that the word applies. They have good soloists, directors and choristers, and a good variety of selections for tomorrow evening. While most of the numbers will be entirely new, several of the old favorites that made the troupe famous will be given. A large attendance is assured, so if you want a good time, follow the line, to Kasino tonight, and get your "fill" of good, to drive away that chill and cure all your ills.

Bachelor maids in Reichenbach, Germany, are taxed for the privilege of being unmarried. In nearly all the French ammunition factories the majority of workers are women.

MURDER OF MINISTER

GEORGE SCHNEIDER HELD IN CONNECTION WITH DEATH OF REV. EDMUND KAYSER

GARY, Ind., Aug. 25.—With the arrest today of George Schneider, a member of the Gary Saxon Verein in connection with the murder of Rev. Edmund Kayser, whose body was found near his person in "Keller's" Tuesday night, the police announced that they had abandoned the theory that the pastor may have been slain because of his pro-German utterances. Schneider's face was cut and bruised. He is said to have told a relative that he was in a fight Tuesday night. The police declare his story unsatisfactory.

Schneider answers the description of the man we have been looking for," Chief Heintz said.

Schneider has been a member of the minister's congregation but is declared to have been his enemy. Rev. Mr. Kayser, it is said, had incurred the displeasure of members of the Saxon Verein because of his opposition to plans of that organization.

REPORT OF UPRISING

U. S. Troops Guard Streets of El Paso, Texas, Against Huerta, Carranza and Orozco Plot

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 25.—El Paso today lay to find its streets bordering the Rio Grande guarded by United States soldiers as a result of the report circulated last night that an uprising of Huerta, Carranza and Orozco factionists had been planned for the early hours of the morning.

Mexicans were not permitted to cross the international bridge from 11 o'clock last night until early today, and no American was allowed to cross to Juarez. Extra guards were ordered out at Fort Bliss where Gen. Huerta is being held. Companies of infantry were posted at the international bridge, the railroad viaduct and all strategic points.

The rumor of the alleged plot was brought to the department of justice representatives, who notified General John J. Pershing, commanding the Eighth brigade, at Fort Bliss.

A conference of city and county officials, representatives of the department of justice, the federal marshal and Gen. Pershing followed. After the conference, Gen. Pershing announced he was prepared to meet any uprising that might start.

During the night soldiers were hurried to their camps by the provost marshal and the police. The police halted and searched Mexicans in the downtown streets. There was no excitement in the city, although an undercurrent of uneasiness was apparent.

Occasional shots were fired by policemen in halting Mexicans found in the lower quarters of the city in order to search them.

ST. ANTHONY'S PARISH

RT. REV. BISHOP DA SILVA, Pastor.

Enjoyable Lawn Fete Opened Last Evening With Large Attendance

The annual garden party under the auspices of the members of St. Anthony's parish had a very successful opening last night, and it is estimated that over 500 people visited the beautiful grounds in the rear of the church in Central street, and all found thorough enjoyment in the excellent program arranged. The affair, which is to continue the remainder of the week, with a grand closing on Saturday evening will undoubtedly attract even larger attendances than was present last night.

The grounds surrounding the church and parish house were resplendent with myriads of incandescents, and Japanese lanterns, and multi-colored streamers were suspended from all corners of the grounds and about the various booths making a very pretty picture.

There was a number of enjoyable midway attractions including aerial wheels, African dancers, merry-go-rounds, and other interesting novelties. A dance hall, constructed at considerable expense, took up the major portion of the rear of the grounds and on this a large number of young people enjoyed the pleasures of a well arranged program of dances with music furnished by Miners orchestra. This orchestra will continue to play for dancing during the remainder of the week.

Rt. Rev. Henry J. R. da Silva, pastor of the church, was present at the grand opening and lent his assistance in providing plenty of enjoyment for the parishioners and their friends.

The reverend gentleman had general supervision of the affair and he was ably assisted by a competent corps of sub-committees, headed by Joseph P. Sheehan, as general manager, and Michael A. Shea as assistant general manager. The members of the other committees were as follows: Joseph Saulier, Thomas McCullough, Edward McCullough, Edward Breen, Thomas Kelly, Henry Sheehan, Frank Quinn, and Joseph Gormley. Mr. Gormley, who is the well known business man, was one of the greatest attractions in the city last night at the affair, and when he wasn't trying to make you buy tickets for the midway attractions he could be seen dancing with some of the children. A number of the little girls were very anxious to obtain "Joe" as a partner for the dances, and he pleased them all by taking each one in turn. He'll be on hand during the remainder of the week, and if we don't miss our guess, so will the children.

The candy table was presided over by Mrs. M. A. Shea and she was assisted by Misses Helen and Catherine Shea, Mrs. George Bowers, Mrs. J. S. Saulier and Misses Gertrude and Bertha Saulier. The lemonade table was in charge of Mrs. Cora Ray, with Mrs. Frank Ray, Mrs. M. McQuade, and Miss Madeline Day as assistants.

The ice cream booth was looked after by Mrs. Frank Vice, Mrs. Patrick Mahoney, Mrs. J. Salome and Miss Beatrice Vice.

WANT JITNEY LICENSES

TWO APPLICATIONS FILED—CANT FIND $2000 BOND—OTHER MATTERS

After Sept. 1 if you see a man with a little round badge abiding on his breast and bearing a large number, don't mistake him for a police officer or a town constable, but salute him as a jitney chauffeur and if you want a ride some, hail him and he will take you to your destination for the small sum of a nickel or half a dime, providing your home is located in his district.

The new motorbus ordinance will go into effect on Sept. 1 and up to this noon two applications for licenses had been filed with Clerk Flaherty of the license commission. The two applicants, however, informed the clerk they cannot secure the $2000 bonds as required by the ordinance and what the license commissioners will do about it remains to be seen.

Each chauffeur will be given a "silver" badge for the sum of $1, while he is also requested to pay another dollar for his license. The man to whom a license is issued will also be presented an identification card bearing the name of the chauffeur, his age, height, weight, color of hair, color of eyes and race. A similar card will be kept on record at the office of the license commission.

Application blanks can be had at the office of the commission in the Market street building. The blank is supposed to contain the name and address of the applicant, the maker's name and number of vehicle, the model or type of vehicle, the rated horse power, the seating capacity of car as indicated by the manufacturer, the Massachusetts automobile registry number, the name and address of operator, chauffeur's license number, terminals between which motor bus is to be operated and specific route or routes over which motor bus is to be operated.

Those who have filed their application are Jacob Forays for the Gorham street route to the city line and George McEwan, also for the same route. These two men informed Clerk Flaherty they could not comply with the ordinance inasmuch as they cannot secure the required bond. According to the ordinance a $2000 bond is necessary and if this is not produced by these two men they cannot

BARRY FOLLOWS FOSS

TAKES HIS CROWDS AS SOON AS THE FORMER GOVERNOR FINISHES

HYANNIS, Aug. 25.—Ex-Gov. Eugene N. Foss began yesterday his campaign for the republican nomination for governor of Massachusetts.

He stated yesterday morning from Boston to Provincetown by boat, made a speech in the latter place at 1:30 yesterday and then made a trip which took him to Wellfleet, Orleans, Chatham, Harwich, Center, Dennisport, West Dennis, South Yarmouth, Hyannis, Centerville, Osterville, Coriut and Mashpee. In all of these places except Harwich he had audiences of considerable size, and it is estimated that he addressed yesterday perhaps 1200 or 1300 persons.

Mr. Foss expressed himself as highly pleased with his reception on the Cape. He said at the end of his trip last night that his audiences yesterday were at least twice as large as those which he heard here in 1910, when he carried on a successful campaign for congress, or in his more recent campaigns for governor. For this reason, the ex-governor believes that the issue of national prohibition, on which he is making his present fight, is a real one with the voters and that the primaries will greatly surprise his opponents for the republican nomination.

Ex-Gov. Foss said in his speeches yesterday that the republicans could not possibly elect their candidate for governor this fall unless he stood on a plank for national prohibition, and that the speaker's own nomination was the only hope of the party in the coming campaign. The people of Barnstable county are not easily excited, and consequently they were not vociferously enthusiastic over Mr. Foss' speeches yesterday, but they gave careful attention to what he said and applauded liberally. The day was hot and muggy when Mr. Foss started

M'ADOO AT PORTLAND PICK UP 40 SURVIVORS

URGES PREPAREDNESS — SAYS NATION SHOULD CARRY OWN FREIGHT

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 26.—At a gathering of representative democrats of Maine at the Palmetto hotel yesterday afternoon, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo defended the democratic way of dealing with the trusts, held that the tariff revision was along just lines, and spoke of the good results certain to follow the federal reserve act and already apparent.

He said that the democratic idea of a merchant marine is good vessels, well equipped and modern in all respects, manned by well-paid American sailors, living under good conditions, and ready to serve the country in the event of a war at any time.

Mr. McAdoo urged that the Maine democrats be loyal to the president, and that the nation should be prepared for any emergency both on land and sea. He also declared that it should be prepared to carry its own freight. This was the only reference he made to the president's shipping bill.

Secretary McAdoo was introduced as the personal representative of President Wilson, and was given a great reception.

Sec. F. F. Driscoll of the democratic state committee presided at the gathering. Long before Sec. McAdoo was introduced the adjoining room was thrown open and instantly filled, and many were unable to get within hearing distance.

The audience was made up of well-known democrats, largely members of the various democratic committees.

Charles T. Reed of Biddeford, chairman of the democratic state committee, made "Organization" the keynote of his address. He said that the splendid gathering of representative men showed that the democratic party is aroused and that it is looking forward to a sweeping victory in 1916.

Congressman Daniel J. McGillicuddy of Lewiston was given a very cordial reception.

He said he had come to get inspiration and to bring to the democrats of Cumberland county the greetings of their fellow democrats of Androscoggin county. He reminded his hearers of the great political changes of the last few years.

"This is a democratic city, and a democratic county," he said. "The good old state of Maine is again in the democratic ranks. Gov. Curtis is giving the state a successful administration and the presence here of Sec. McAdoo is a reminder that there is a democratic administration of the affairs of the country."

He paid a tribute to President Wilson, and to his administration, and expressed his confidence in his reelection in 1916.

Senator Charles F. Johnson said he believed that the party organization must be made as effective as possible. He denounced the methods adopted by some of the republican senators, and said they are sitting in the back part of the court dragging their feet and trying the best to prevent progress, but now and then one drops off.

He defended the great measures of the administration of President Wilson, and said that no industry in Maine was in the least degree harmed by the tariff bill, and that even republicans now admit the wisdom of the federal reserve act, largely due to Sec. McAdoo.

In closing he spoke of the ability, the high Christian character and the firmness of President Wilson.

BRIDE OF WEEK QUILTS

BEING STEPMOTHER OF NINE CHILDREN TOO MUCH FOR 19-YEAR-OLD GIRL

WAKEFIELD, Aug. 25.—Claiming that her husband of a week ago had deceived her by saying he had only two children when in reality he has nine sons and daughters, Mrs. Rena Willis White, 19-year-old wife of Foster White, a 19-year-old resident of this town, has left the White home at 609 Maine street, Wakefield Junction, returned to her former residence in Everett and says she will sue for a divorce.

Mr. White says he does not know why his wife left home, as she knew he had nine children and had seen most of them when she visited his home before her marriage.

The young bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellerson C. Willis of 249 Main street, Everett, and until her marriage had been employed in a number of West Everett stores. She was married a week ago last Thursday, in Everett, to Mr. White, who is a stoker at the municipal light plant here.

"My ideals have been shattered," said Mrs. White last night, when asked why she had left her husband. "He deceived me before marriage by saying that he had only two children, but when I went to his home to live I was welcomed by six boys and girls who called me their new mother and also learned that there were two other daughters and another son who did not live at home."

"It was too much for me and I decided to return home. My husband, whom I loved before my marriage, did not treat me as he had promised he would, and my dreams of being a happy wife were short lived. It was too much for me, not alone the fact that there were eight of us to work for and prepare meals for, but other happenings which were related to me by the neighbors. I intend to sue for divorce or an annulment of the marriage."

NORWEGIAN STEAMER RESCUES MEMBERS OF CREW OF BRITISH STEAMER

LISBON, Aug. 25, via Paris, Aug. 26, 2:30 a. m.—The Norwegian steamer Haytor, arrived from Oporto, reports picking up on August 21 forty survivors of the British steamer Windsor, which was sunk by a submarine. The members of the Windsor's crew were transferred from the Haytor to the British steamer Renner the day after they were rescued.

It was reported on Aug. 22 that the Windsor, a vessel of 6055 tons, had been sunk. It was said then that her crew had been saved.

BRIDEGROOM ARRESTED

DOBSON IS ACCUSED OF PASSING WORTHLESS CHECKS — POLICE SAY HE MARRIED ON PROCEEDS

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 26.—Wm. Dobson, aged 33, was arrested in Westfield last night and brought to this city, charged with passing worthless checks. It is alleged that Dobson took funds thus secured and used them in getting married. His bride of a week is suffering from nervous shock occasioned by his arrest.

The police claim that Dobson gave J. P. Boyle of this city a worthless check for $20 drawn on the North Adams bank. Boyle driving Dobson, his bride-to-be and a man and woman, companion to Dobson, to Cape Henry, where Dobson was married. It is then alleged that the party came back to this city and from here went to Hartford, where a worthless check for $47 was passed on a large department store in payment for two suits for his wife.

The police claim other checks for various amounts were passed in Northampton, and that one for $27 was passed on the Hotel Blumark in Westfield, where Dobson was arrested. The man is a picture enlarger by trade and of a pleasing appearance.

ARREST GERMAN AS SPY

RESERVIST KOPSCH, HERE TWO YEARS, HAD PHOTOGRAPHS OF U. S. FORTIFICATIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Agents of the secret service of the department of justice yesterday arrested Kopsch, a German reservist, who had in his possession many photographs and films of the fortifications of Fortress Monroe and pictures of the proposed fortifications in Cape Henry, protecting the entrance to Hampton Roads and Chesapeake bay. Kopsch is the second Teuton to be arrested on this charge, an Austrian of many aliases having been taken into custody two weeks ago in Florida for having pictures of coast defenses in that state.

The specific charge against Kopsch is that he violated article 3 of the act of 1911 which prohibits the making of pictures, or the having possession of pictures, that might impair the defenses of the United States. The prescribed penalty is a fine of $100, imprisonment for one year, or both.

Kopsch is in the District of Columbia jail, in default of $5000 bond fixed by a United States commissioner.

Kopsch's alleged activities occurred in late July and early August. He first attracted attention by taking many photographs of Fortresses Monroe and Cape Henry, where new batteries will be placed, and by the many questions he asked about the plans for new works. He is said to have inquired where the guns would be placed and where the new pier would be built at Cape Henry for marine communications with the outer forts in the bay.

For some time Kopsch has been living here at a boarding house, 1429 U street. His movements were regarded as mysterious, and attracted the comment of his fellow-boarders, though his employment in some capacity by the Carnegie institute seemed to explain his presence. The detective who made the arrest got the impression that Kopsch, in spite of the notice he had attracted, was utterly unaware that he was suspected. His arrest has been pending for some days, and would have taken place yesterday but that time was allowed for the collection of further evidence.

Kopsch is 21 years old, and has been in the country about two years. There was no hint of the arrest by the administration was using the means at its disposal to press an inquiry into reported activities of German propagandists in this country. Many clues have been supplied to the various departments of the government, and these are being sifted and followed up by the department of justice.

HELD IN $5000 BAIL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Facing a charge of violating the federal law for the protection of the national defenses by making pictures of military reservations, Gustave Kopsch, a German, aged 27, an instrument maker in the Carnegie Institution here, was being held today in $5000 bail to await trial in the federal district court at Norfolk, Va.

Kopsch, it is said, did not deny taking the pictures, but insisted that he had been permitted to do so by a drunken sentry at Fortress Monroe. He did not explain why he made the photographs.

INVENTS ARMORED CAR

LOWELL YOUNG MAN SUBMITS INVENTION TO WAR DEPT.—FORMIDABLE MACHINE

A Lowell young man by the name of Joseph McCann has invented an armored car that will shoot fore and aft, right and left or straight up, without the least sign of a jar. McCann is 19 years old. He is living with John Grant at 675 Mammoth road. He has always been of an inventive turn of mind and now he allows he has hit on something pretty good for the war department. He is interested in his model of an armored motor car. McCann's car will carry ten guns, two on the top, for use against airplanes, three on each side and one on each end. The guns will be mounted on swivels and will shoot any old way. The guns will be of the Maxim rapid-firing type and the number of guns is the highest yet proposed for such a car. The car will have a belt of armor 3-16 of an inch thick on the outside, including the shutters over the guns, through which the sighting can be done. Inside this layer will be a space of four inches in which will be located springs to take up the shock of the contact of light shells with the body of the car. There will come an armor belt three-eighths of an inch in thickness. The armor will be supported by connections with the roof of the car, and the weight will not come on the sides. The wheels will be protected by the overhanging body and also by an armor layer, then the springs, then the second armor layer. This is the model sent to the War department. The car is made for a twenty foot chassis. The car would carry for six or eight men and would carry 500 or 600 pounds of ammunition. The weight would be about four tons, and the engine of 50 horse power would be sufficiently powerful to propel the car. The War department received the model about the first of the present month and the department has suggested that the resolution of all Russians to carry the war to the end of the victory necessary to "free Europe" is assured. The emperor added: "France can count on my immovable will to struggle on until complete victory is achieved."

MUST OBEY GERMANS

Military Government of Belgium issued Order For Punishment to All who Disobey

BRUSSELS, Aug. 26, via London, 11:22 a. m.—General von Bissing, military governor of Belgium, has issued an order providing for the punishment of every person "who, without adequate reason, refuses to undertake or carry on work of public interest, which is demanded by the German authorities and which is suited to his calling."

Punishment also is threatened to any person who hinders work ordered by the Germans or induces other persons to decline to work.

LOWELL MAN A SPEAKER

J. H. Guillet, Esq., of this city, was one of the speakers at the clam bake held today at Lincoln park, New Bedford, under the auspices of the French-American Democratic club of Massachusetts. Others who addressed the large gathering were William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury at Washington, D. C., Hon. Edward P. Barry, ex-lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, Hon. Adlai Stevenson, former lieutenant governor of Rhode Island; Congressman Peter F. Tague of Boston, John F. Doherty of Fall River, Senator Alexis Boyer, Jr., of Southbridge, Michael J. O'Leary, chairman of the state democratic committee, and Edmund P. Talbot, chairman of the French-American democratic state committee.

NO WORD OF STEFANSSON

FEARS ARE FELT FOR SAFETY OF EXPLORER—MAIL CUTTER BACK FROM ALASKA

Alaska, Aug. 26.—The United States coast guard cutter Bear, which carried mails to Point Barrow, the most northerly point of Alaska, returned here reporting that no word of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, and his two companions had been received. The belief is growing that all three have perished. Stefansson, accompanied by Ole Anderson and Stork Storkerson, left Martin Point, west of the mouth of the Mackenzie river, April 7 of last year, going north over the ice in the hope of finding new land and expecting, should their quest fail, to turn east and reach Banksland. The Mackenzie river opened with a rush in the spring of 1914 and poured out a torrent of water that washed away the ice connecting Banksland with the land ice further east.

WOMEN PLEA TO CARMEN

PROMISE NEVER TO FALL OFF, AND NEVER TO SAY 'BOY IS THREE' WHEN HE IS TEN

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Speakers for the woman suffrage party made a tour of the car barns today to hold a series of meetings in which they hoped to reach every conductor and motorman with an appeal to vote for woman suffrage in the fall election. The automobiles in which they hurried about the city were laden with bouquets, campaign buttons and suffrage ribbons.

Posters were distributed at all the barns reading as follows: "Conductors, Motormen! Forget your grouch at us. Give us the vote and we will try never to fall off the car backward, never to climb on or off while in motion, never to forget our transfers and never to say Johnnie is three when he is ten."

VIENNA, Aug. 26, via London, 11:29 a. m.—The American note to Austria-Hungary, in which Washington declined to stop the shipment of munitions of war to Europe was published here today with the following inspired remark:

"The note is being subjected to thorough and friendly study in the foreign ministry and will then be answered."

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

NOW'S THE TIME TO BUY

There is a wrong feeling abroad in this city and one that is injuring everybody. It is that of the man who believes that business is liable to go bad from some cause that exists nowhere except in the imagination. These forebodings are indulged by some people who are earning good wages from week to week and who put their money quietly away in a bank or worse still, in a stocking or a hole in the wall.

Knowing whereof we speak, after looking into the matter thoroughly, we are prepared to state on indisputable authority that not for two years to come will household necessities be as cheap as they are at the present time. Hence if you want a suit of clothes, a dress, an overcoat, a pair of shoes, or anything in the furniture line from a kitchen range to a vacuum sweeper, buy now and you will save money. Just as sure as you put it off to the cold weather or to next year, you will have to pay considerably more money for what you want. This applies to the wide range of textile fabrics and wearing apparel of all kinds as well as to the various lines of furniture. Even building material is lower now than formerly.

The reason of this is, that after recovering from the first effects of the European war and the disturbance caused by the revision of the tariff, the whole country is bending towards greater industrial activity and the enormous crops have encouraged everybody so that for another year at least this nation is secure regardless of what happens in Europe.

Do not for a moment dream that there will be war between the United States and Germany. President Wilson could scarcely be induced by any provocation to join the allies in the warfare against Germany. If we must have a reckoning with Germany let it come after the European conflict is ended.

Every American citizen can rest easy on that score. Germany is evidently desirous of maintaining friendly relations with the United States and we are not anxious to pick a quarrel with her. On the contrary we are doing everything to avoid it and judging from the present outlook there is absolutely no danger of war or even of severing relations with Germany. That being so, why this gloomy foreboding? Why this fear of spending your money to buy what you need? The merchants of Lowell and the traders in all kinds of household necessities are at present offering bargains such as have not been offered for years. This, then, is the time to buy, the time to avail of the favorable market even if you may have to put your new suit on the hanger in your closet or lay your new shoes away till next season.

It is time to wake up, to cheer up and realize the prosperity at your doors and the vast opportunities and possibilities ahead.

Again we say wake up folks—go out and buy what you want. It is well to remember that a penny saved is a penny gained and if you can save five dollars on a suit of clothes, one dollar on a pair of shoes, or ten dollars on house furnishings, why not do so? Read this editorial carefully, then look around the stores for the things you need and judge for yourself. If what we say about prices is not correct. As to prosperity ahead, any business man will tell you that every live wire in the land is at work and ready to keep on at moderate profits on the conviction that the industrial ship has been righted and is now sailing securely to the port of prosperity.

OUR JITNEYS

Occasional complaints have been heard from residents along the Lawrence road and the immediate vicinity against the tendency of jitney drivers to overspeed, and the testimony of some who have used the vehicles indicates that the complaints are just. Only a few days ago there was a serious collision between two of the cars that had kept side by side for some distance in a speed contest, and there have been many minor accidents that could have been prevented if caution were exercised.

This recreative habit of some jitney drivers must be stopped in the interest of public safety. The public in patronizing the new mode of conveyance, expresses a preference for convenience and speed, but few people care to travel at a rate that invites disaster. It is expected that the drivers of private autos keep within reason in their rate of speed, and it is expected still more that drivers of jitneys catering to the general public will refrain from extremes.

The wise driver will not wait until the law compels him to observe the rules of common safety, realizing that every accident hurts his business. He will run his cars at a fair rate of speed but will refrain from excessive speed. It is generally the irresponsible driver who runs his car recklessly and jeopardizes the lives of the passengers, and it is this type that must be stopped. If the jitneys are not to constitute a new menace to those who use the streets and public highways,

Anybody who has been driven in an auto over the road to Lawrence will readily see the special dangers of speeding along the route. Thunder winds in and out along the river bank and there are sudden changes in grade that hold danger for the incautious driver. Jitney drivers who use this road should be swayed by calm judgment and should not endanger their business and the lives of those who ride with them by the silly speed fever. There may be a certain thrill in getting to Lawrence in twenty or twenty-five minutes, but most people prefer to take a little longer in transit, remembering "safety first."

FILTRATION PLANT

Word comes from Commissioner Carmichael that the new municipal filtration plant in Pawtucketville is practically completed. The engines are now being installed and it is the belief of the commissioner that the plant will be in actual operation within two weeks.

This is most gratifying, and those in charge of the work deserve credit for the smoothness and efficiency with which each detail has been attended to. Grave and unforeseen obstacles cropped out in construction, but these were overcome and the completed plant will compare with similar ventures in many of the largest cities in the country.

The need for the filtration plant does not now seem so pressing as when it was first proposed as for some time past the supply at the boulevard wells has been adequate and of good quality. Experts say, however, that a repetition of the old conditions may be expected at any time, and it will be demonstrated before long whether the expensive filtration plant will do all that has been claimed for it. Since the impurities in the Lowell water were mostly visible, Lowell may still enjoy the pure water of the days when the wells were new with the additional advantage of having it clear and sparkling.

If so, the new plant will be hailed as a needed and appreciated improvement indeed.

It is also gratifying that for the present at least there is no expectation of a change in the source of our water supply. The time may come when it may be found necessary to take our water directly from the river, but that must remain as the last resort or perhaps paradoxically, the one after the last.

Incidentally, it would appear that the rains of this season filled rivers, wells and springs and prevented the water shortage of other years. This may explain why the water has been so clear, but in summers to come we may hail the filtration plant as a boon and a public benefit.

MUST SUSPEND JUDGMENT

No matter what one may think of the sinking of the Arabic, the message of Count von Bernstorff to the state department, in which he expresses the regret of the imperial government at the loss of American lives and asked America to suspend judgment until all facts are known comes as a relief. The situation has indeed been strained and in some ways more ominous than after the sinking of the Lusitania, because our government has virtually threatened action, and the country waited for something besides the sending of another note. Nevertheless, it is the earnest hope of the American people that we can continue to keep out of the war, and anything that would ensure our continuing in honorable neutrality is welcome.

Germany contends that we have as yet received but one side of the Arabic story, and nothing ought to be done until the official German report is received. Sometimes it is several days before submarine returns to their base, and the German government reported that it had not yet heard from the commander who sent the Arabic to the bottom. Yet the German government declared that if Americans had lost their lives it was contrary to German intentions, and there is no good reason to doubt it. The illegality of the act might not deter Germany from doing it at this time, but there are practical considerations which would make it dangerous for Germany, without justification.

Time will show whether the excuse of Germany is well based or merely a subterfuge, and this country will lose nothing by waiting. Washington expresses satisfaction at the friendly tone of the German note, and it now looks as though nothing will be done until we have the German explanation of the Arabic incident. The strict British censorship makes it all the more imperative that we wait patiently and suspend judgment until we get the promised German account. Better

UNIFORM DIVORCE LAWS

The Illinois legislature has recently passed a law that seems simple and unimportant on first reading but that looms up as very significant and far-reaching when analyzed. This law stipulates that persons resident in another state and applying for license to marry in Illinois must be eligible for license and marriage in the state where they hold legal residence. This comprehensive law aims at preventing the nullification of the laws of one state by laxity in the laws of another. It goes a good way towards the enactment of the uniform divorce laws for which so many are working.

There is no disposition in the new law to go contrary to state rights, for it recognizes the right of any state to make its own laws; it merely sees to it that such laws are respected. If the courts of New York grant a divorce to a wife and forbid the husband to wed again, he cannot go to Illinois and marry owing to this new law. He can, however, go to other states and defy the laws of New York, and it is a matter of national reproach that some states seem to invite such defiance of law and morality. Husbands and wives who have thrown off the marriage tie have made it a popular society sport to cross the state line and take another chance at matrimony.

The lead of Illinois should be followed by all states, especially since it establishes no new principle but aims at preventing the flouting of state laws. There would still be something to be done, but such a law, if made universal, would prevent a great deal of the abuse that causes America to blush before the world in this one particular.

OUR CONSULAR SERVICE

The great war has demonstrated among other things that the American consular service can meet grave international emergencies and so conduct itself as to merit the fullest confidence of our own people and the respect of all others. Before the war, criticism of this branch of the government was frequent; now there is nothing but praise. There is good cause for this change of attitude, and anybody who would attack our consular service today would be hard set to find damaging facts on which to base charges. In England, France, Germany, Russia, and elsewhere, American consuls have acted with tact and dignity, and they have attended to American interests like masters of diplomacy. Our representatives abroad have faced many delicate situations and in many instances their zeal, prudence and timely activity have smoothed over many a rough spot in international dealings. Where there are over six hundred consuls, there may be an occasional misfit, but it has been demonstrated beyond any reasonable doubt that the American consular service is able, efficient and splendidly patriotic.

of rulers in which the respective peoples are tragic puppets. The peoples have no grievances against each other, except in some instances where attitudes of mind have been fostered by the governments. Fritz and Hans would much rather be on their farms by the Rhine than shooting at Jacques and Pierre who in turn would fain be back in their Parisian shops, and Nicholas wonders why he should hate the Turk who smokes cigarettes and dreams by the Hesperus. When governments represent the people instead of driving them in dumb drives, there will be no more secret diplomacy, hidden agreements and outworn cant about the wars of the peoples. The peoples are ready to fight when they are called but they do not make wars. That is the game of the rulers, and when it is all over, what do the people gain?

THE MOSQUITOES

The insect plague of Egypt does not sound mythological any longer, for we have had the plague of mosquitoes, and what a plague it was! Through doors and windows and screens they swarmed, armed with their instruments of torture, making the evening unpleasant and the night intolerable. Z-z-z-z, zing; blif-escaped! and then the lighted match, the fruitless search, the grumbling return to an uneasy bed. Many a maid has had her beauty marred while she slept, and many a man has had his temper so ruffled that it will take a week to get on the klacks and to get in the sleep he has lost. The bravest has not dared to sit out of doors in the evening, though armed with less stick and cigar, and even the most prudent carries around unusual shin and wrist decorations.

Now comes a warning of the U. S. health authorities that the mosquito of 1915 has malaria germs and other germs to give away free. We don't doubt it. All those bumps did not come from injections of distilled water. It behooves everybody, therefore, to be careful. Prevention is the thing—the cleaning out of cesspools, the draining of pools, the hermetical sealing of avenues by which the unloved visitors might enter. If they are in, make the best of it, and if you do not mind a little unpleasantness in the remedy, try a massage before retiring with any one of six evil smelling oils. Some who have tried this can testify to its powerful smell and its general efficacy.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is easy to read a man's face after you know what kind of a man he is.

One sign that we are growing more humane is that men blanket their motor car engines.

Safety First

A long-haired chap who walked into the general store at Arvada, asked, "Do you sell stale eggs?" "No," said the grocer, with a smile, "but I've got some." "Well, give me all you've got," said the stranger.

The grocer as he handed up the eggs, laughed and said, "I guess you're going to see 'Hamlet' tonight at the opera house."

"No," said the stranger grimly, "I'm going to play 'Hamlet' tonight at the opera house."

Make Soap From Sugar

The discovery is announced of a method of manufacture of soap from sugar, of which Germany has plenty, instead of from oil, which is scarce. In the past it has been possible to use sugar only in soaps that had little value. By the new method, it is claimed, the soap produced is not only fine and delicate, but it acts as effluciently in salt water as in fresh—in fact that may make the soap valuable for the navy.

Articles that formerly had to be sent to chemical laundries can now be washed with the new kind of soap. The finest kinds of silk it is alleged not only are not harmed by it, but their colors are brought out brilliantly as if new. In addition, the sugar-soap seems to be responsible for a minimum of the wear and tear occasioned by oil-finished cleansing soaps.

Things Worth Knowing

Delicate cotton goods or lace may be stiffened by wringing them out in milk instead of water.

To remove white marks from a polished table caused by hot dishes, rub with paraffin on a flannel cloth, afterward polish with alcohol.

To obtain a beautiful luster on cut-glass wash it in two quarts of hot water to which one tablespoonful of turpentine has been added.

If a piece of woolen cloth is placed on the floor where glass has been broken the clay particles will stick to it and thus be removed. It is almost impossible to get them up with a broom.

To remove stains from linen, rub them on either side with yellow soap and then apply starch made into a paste with cold water. Rub this paste well into the stain, hang in the sun for some hours, then wash.

It should be a matter of common knowledge, since flour is always within convenient reach, that wheat flour is the best extinguisher to throw over a fire caused by the spilling and lighting of kerosene.

Stamp Collectors Busy

The war is bringing grist to the mills of the philatelists, or at least that branch of the wide and patiently acquisitive family of the philatelists composed of stamp collectors. Common canceled postage stamps of the governments which may be blotted out before peace returns are in active demand and the stamps bearing the heads of kings or emperors or the arms of ruling houses that may be put out of office or out of power by the conflict are in great request, an exchange points out. Governments that may undergo a great change may, when peace returns, issue new stamps which will lend interest and value to the issues of the present. Belgian stamps in use up to the outbreak of the war have been pretty thoroughly collected and the stamps that carry mail out of that war-ridden land today are German stamps with a surcharge on their face which shows that they have taken the place of the former postage stamps in German Samoa, the postage stamps in New Zealand with "Samoa" printed across their face are in use, and it is likely that in the German islands of the Pacific occupied by the Japanese, the postage stamps of Nippon appropriately surcharged are being used. In what was once German New Guinea, English stamps are surcharged in a way that shows the change of sovereignty in that land.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

THE STRANGE PET.

Once upon a time Mary's father told her he had something to show her out in the barn. So she took hold of his hand and they went to the barn and there, in the corner, in a nice clean pen were fourteen tiny pigs with pink skin and soft white hair. Mary took one up and the mother pig grunted as much as to say: "Did you ever see such beautiful children?"

The next morning when Mary went out to see the pigs, one very tiny one was lying in the corner and looked very ill. Mary's father told her it had not eaten anything and that the others wouldn't let come near the pig of milk. "Oh, Father, can't I have that little one for mine. I will take care of it and make it eat," cried Mary. Her father said that she could, so she took it in her arms to the house and made a bed for it in a basket lined with soft cotton. Then she warned some milk, put it in a saucer and tried to make her new pet eat but it wouldn't touch it or any of the other nice things that Mary fixed for it. At last Mary thought of her doll's nursing bottle and ran and filled it with the milk. She put it in the pig's mouth and it began to drink and didn't stop until the milk was all gone.

After that it always had its drink in the bottle, and when it began to grow, it would walk around the room with the bottle of milk in its mouth and would hold on with all its might if anyone tried to get it away. Mary named the pig Peg and when she jumped up in her lap to be petted, Peg enjoyed that very much, especially when Mary combed and scratched its back. Then she would tie a blue ribbon around its neck and Peg would go to sleep in her basket. I think it was a strange pet, don't you?

FRANK FILMS ARE BARRED

PICTURES SHOWN IN BOSTON THEATRE HAD NOT BEEN APPROVED BY NATIONAL CENSORS

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Films of the Leo M. Frank case which were being shown in an East Boston theatre were suppressed after the theatre management received word from the police of station 7 to quit exhibiting the pictures. The police acted on order of Municipal Censor Casey. The films had been shown Monday to the theatre patrons, but Mr. Casey got wind of the matter in time to prevent Tuesday's exhibition. Mr. Casey acted because the films had not received the approval of the national board of censors, which has its headquarters in New York. A standing order from the mayor's office to the moving picture houses states that no film of any nature shall be exhibited unless it has been approved by the national board of censors. Mr. Casey was cognizant that the national board had refused to O. K. films on the Frank case.

THE SPELLBINDER

"How sharper—than a serpent's tooth
It is
To have a thankless child!"

Did you read what appeared in the political column of the Courier-Citizen Wednesday, as follows:

"Speaking of local politics for the moment, Mayor Murphy has served one term of two years, and would naturally be up for nomination. As a matter of fact he is quite indifferent to the honor, but is an expression of the belief that he has been an efficient non-partisan mayor, and would continue to be one if reelected."

Strong efforts are being made, however, to induce the mayor to become a candidate. The movement does not appear to be directed against any other candidates who may have aspirations for the honor, but is an expression of the belief that he has been an efficient non-partisan mayor, and would continue to be one if reelected."

What the writer means to convey, but doesn't care to say in good plain language, is:

"You're a nice man, Dennis, and we like you, but Perry Thompson is going to be a candidate, so you had better not run again."

And observe the neat manner in which the Courier-Citizen is trying to smoke him out on that second-term proposition, to wit: "Two years ago he made the statement: 'If a mayor is honest and a lawyer, two years is about as long as he can afford to neglect his business.'"

How can the mayor go back on such a statement if he made it? If the Spellbinder had attributed such a statement to His Honor, the latter's friends would howl about his disregard for the truth, etc., but the Spellbinder didn't make it. I have also supposed that the statement His Honor made and repeated on the stump was that one term was enough for any man and that he would not seek a second term. But there's a chance to get around such a statement by means of a petition asking His Honor to be a candidate again despite his voluntary remarks on the stump. The Courier-Citizen, however, takes no chances, and quotes His Honor as having made a statement that no amount of coaxing could make him repeat, two years is about as long as he would be affecting his own reputation.

The Courier-Citizen says His Honor is quite indifferent to a renomination. He has certainly shown his indifference, by raising the health department and the legal department, every body under him, by giving the police whom he roundly criticized on the stump, one day off in 15; by coming off strongly a week ago, for one day off in five for the firemen, after previously having sent the city solicitor to the legislature to have the measure; by shifting on the Seventh Avenue hospital site after stating that the hospital must go there; by his anxiety relative to the Pawtucket bridge and the Dummer street extension; by his anxiety to placate the property-owners in Kirk and Anne streets, by holding the municipal hall open for everybody's back yard instead of on the Common; oh, yes he is indifferent—as indifferent as the Locks & Canals company over its rights in the Merrimack river. But lastly and best of all, says the Courier-Citizen: "but the movement is an expression of the belief that he has been an efficient, non-partisan mayor, and would continue to be one if elected."

And the only time that the mayor has had an opportunity to demonstrate his non-partisanship during his entire term was when he had the appointment of five emergency commissioners—and he appointed three good straight-laced republicans, which is the Courier-Citizen's idea of non-partisanship, as frequently evidenced, but seldom as freely acknowledged, as in this case.

Time and Campaigns Make Changes

Political campaigns like time itself make many changes. When this administration was trying to get in, the police were roundly roasted and the firemen likewise. When the administration got into power it did away with a time-honored custom of allowing policemen and firemen their pay while off for a few days on account of illness, so that now when a policeman or a fireman is off a day on account of illness he is "docked" that day's pay. Then the administration sent the city solicitor to Boston, to oppose the one-day-off-in-five for the firemen, the proposition then before the legislature.

But—the time came when the thoughts of some of the members of the administration turned upon the desirability of a second term and it was necessary to do something to "square" the policemen and the firemen for the loss of their pay while ill. The mayor placed the policemen with one day off in 15 while at a banquet of the firemen held recently. His Honor and Col. Carmichael declared themselves emphatically in favor of the one-day-off-in-five proposition for the firemen, thereby going back on the city solicitor who had faithfully done their bidding. Still it doesn't pay for policemen or firemen to get sick any more.

Our Waxed Fire Department

In the equity court in Boston, way back in April, when the city tried by legal means to prevent Mr. Simpson from putting a big sign over the Owl theatre building on the ground that it was a fire-hazard, the judge sitting on the case, in the presence of Commissioners Duncan and Putnam and probably Carmichael, City Solicitor Hennessy, Building Inspector Connor and Col. Carmichael, said: "Mr. Simpson, you had better go back and fix up that Lowell fire department."

At that time the municipal council already had voted $16,000 for new fire apparatus, and all the government had to do was to go ahead on the court's advice and fix up the department. It is now almost September and the $16,000 still lies idle, with the fire department in a most deplorable condition, while the administration members are looking for votes by means of a Pawtucket bridge, Dummer street extension and other matters of less vital importance.

As is the policy of the members of the administration when any of the departments is criticized to place the blame with the commissioners in charge, the responsibility in this case is laid at the door of Col. Carmichael, when as a matter of fact each commissioner is equally responsible for the entire council is ordered by the charter to outline the policies of the individual departments and have supervision over them.

Recently the residents of the Highlands protested emphatically against the removal of the horses from the chemical in Westford street, as a result of which it has been announced in the papers, Col. Carmichael has replaced the horses, and the public is given the inference that adequate fire protection for the Highlands has been restored.

But has it been restored? Just take a look at the two superannuated candidates for the rendering company that have been dignified with the name of horse, and placed in that Westford street fire house.

Now that the fire department has placed what it is pleased to call horses in the Westford street house, the buildings department, as an act of charity, should place a couple of its wooden carpenters in the stalls to serve as props for the horses of the fire department.

Upon looking at these animals in the Westford street house, one's first inclination is to remove his hat out of veneration for old age. Then if he is fortunate enough to own an auto his next move is to get his tire pump and blow them up. It is said that the firemen for innocent diversion are playing a game of "odd or even" on the number of ribs exposed to view by each animal.

But the department itself, it is said, realizing the proximity to the crematorium of the two horses, has come to the rescue and instructions have been given that the Westford street chemical is not to respond to any alarms or fires in the Highlands, unless orders are received from headquarters.

If it is true that such are the orders

then that chemical will be as useless as the engine in Palmer street which stands on the floor of the fire house with harnesses set, but no horses, and minus a cylinder that was blown out in the Livingston fire, but never repaired.

A chemical engine is a sort of first aid to a fire affair, and if it becomes necessary to wait for the chief or assistant to get to the Highlands from a remote part of the city and determine whether the chemical should be summoned or not, then there might as well be no chemical in the Westford street house. Fires, like time and tide wait for no man, not even a fire chief, and the time to have a chemical on the job is as soon as speed can get it there after the discovery of the blaze.

At the recent green-house fire in the upper Highlands no chemical responded. I am informed, and when the hose was finally set and put in operation there wasn't enough water pressure to carry it to the second story. In some of the houses in the upper Highlands the householders find the water flowing reluctantly into their bath tubs on account of the low pressure.

The one thing needed and demanded by the taxpayers of the Highlands, who insist on their rights, even as the good people of Belvidere and Pawtucket do when threatened with contagious disease hospitals, is a chemical engine that can get to a fire with speed and which upon getting there is equipped so as to perform its functions. The branch street fire company will not do, for it covers the territory below the depot, and when it is responding to an alarm in that district, the entire upper part of the city is without fire protection.

Squire Donahue's Remarks

One by one our friends are knocking. One by one their hammers fall. Some are writing, some are talking. Where will we be at this fall?

In police court, Tuesday, Lawyer Donahue defending a couple of non-voting residents, who were charged with selling soap on the Sabbath made the following remarks:

"There are times when storekeepers and others should be protected from the police. I am glad as a citizen of Lowell to know that the police are detecting crimes on Sunday. This is a very important case, but some day the police may get a real big Sunday case. They have been bringing in a few crap-shooters, poor widows who were selling a drop of liquor to support four or five or six dependent children and now they are working on five-cent soap cases. Some day, I repeat, the local constabulary will round up a real case. There are hundreds of cases of violation of the law on Sunday that are going unnoticed, and some day the Lowell police may find out about them."

Lawyer Donahue has always been friendly-disposed toward this administration and his remarks were not made for political effect, or through unfriendliness, but as statements of fact, and it would appear that he is quite right in his assertions. A liquor dealer is caught by the liquor inspectors violating the law and gets away with it; of course all liquor dealers don't, in fact some are rigidly watched; a man, it is said, is detected selling from the hotel many miles from the Cartridge shop and he gets away with it. Recently a club room was invaded and a bunch of boys playing a game of cards—for money, there was probably five dollars in the entire crowd, were arrested, while the administration received big headlines from certain sources for rounding up the "gamblers." Now they're after the minor Sunday sellers and are specializing among those who don't vote. But you don't hear any of the "big league stuff" from the police these days; and you won't, with a second term in prospect.

But that case in Market street last Sunday, in which Lawyer Donahue was concerned, is interesting for it shows what fine results might be accomplished if the members of the department turned their extraordinary efforts in other directions. The case was all carefully planned out in advance. Officer O'Sullivan, a supernumerary, was selected to do the "concomitant" job, while Messenger Pindar, the department's exclusive finger-print expert, was the Sherlock Holmes who was to do the real scientific detective work.

Officer O'Sullivan put on a disguise before leaving the police station. He testified in response to Lawyer Donahue's question as to how he dressed: "Like you are." Therefore he must have been disguised like a live one. Before leaving the police station also, he probably pressed his palm upon a sheet of paper smeared with carbon, which left the impression of his finger-prints. Completing his disguise by lighting a good cigar, Officer O'Sullivan accompanied by Messenger Pindar strolled along Market street, until he reached the store upon which they were to descend.

O'Sullivan entered, while Pindar remained outside. Costopoulos, who was in the store greeted O'Sullivan with a smile that was child-like and bland and remarked: "Chickynas?" which is the Market street for "How do you do?" O'Sullivan smilingly came back with: "Though-a-much, which in days gone by was the Market street for: 'I'm well.'"

"Gettin' much?" inquired Costopoulos. "If I get you, I may get commended by the mayor," facetiously replied O'Sullivan, which drew a laugh from the unsuspecting Costo. "Do you keep soap?" inquired O'Sullivan, getting down to business. "Sometimes, when we have to, but generally we sell it," said Costo, furnishing his own laugh, at this little sally.

"Let me have five cents worth of soap," said O'Sullivan reaching for his wallet. Costopoulos handed him a bar of soap, which O'Sullivan took and examined. "Hard or soft?" inquired Costo. "Hard and right the case binged. Had O'Sullivan called for soft soap it would have been all off; there'd been no corroborative evidence and Messenger Pindar's scientific services would have been in vain.

But O'Sullivan had to pass a civil service examination in order to get on the force and hence was nobody's fool, and he didn't fall for anything as soft as a case. He purchased a cake of hard soap and took it in his hand. That also was vitally important. Had he ordered it sent to the state, he would have been blown up. He took it in his hand and as he gently pressed his illy-white fingers upon its impressionable surface the impression of his fingers was left on the soap.

That's where Pindar came in. He had been on the outside looking in, as it were, and up to that time could testify only to having seen O'Sullivan enter the store, and had Costo denied the sale it would have been man against man. But once Pindar's scientific eye rested upon the tell-tale prints upon the soap he knew that they were O'Sullivan's prints and that O'Sullivan had purchased the soap and science knows that no two men have finger-prints alike; hence none but O'Sullivan could have been the purchaser. Thus the case was clinched and even Dan Donahue, clever lawyer though he may be, couldn't get away from that incontrovertible evidence.

The above account may not be quite exact, but the purchase and the sub-

The above account may not be quite exact, but the purchase and the subsequent case were conducted very much as here described.

Mr. Wilson's Candidacy

The republican contest for county treasurer might be called a newspaper fight for County Treasurer Joseph O. Hayden is the owner of the Somerville Journal while his opponent Harold D. Wilson is the owner of the Journal's rival paper, the Somerville News. Both papers are weekly, but by no means weak, and hence the Somerville people undoubtedly will get plenty of spicy campaign reading between now and September 21. Mr. Wilson claims to represent the younger element of the republican party, the element that is going to attract the backsliding progressives back into the fold. He claims that 30 years ago Joseph O. Hayden opposed the man who then held the office of county treasurer on the ground that he had already held it 15 years which was long enough for any man. The people at that time must have thought so too, for they elected Mr. Hayden and he has continued to hold the job almost twice 15 years, having rounded 30 years. Now Mr. Wilson is using Mr. Hayden's argument of three decades ago only he has extended the time limit as it were, and he claims that 30 years is surely long enough for any one man to hold a county job. One cannot help thinking how insignificant were Mayor Murphy's remarks that one term of 2 years was enough for any man, when in county affairs they give a man 30 years before raising the "hold enough" cry on him. Mr. Wilson came to town Tuesday evening accompanied by a few of the faithful in a well placarded auto. In the party also, was Mr. William, a Boston newspaperman, who is crying in the wilderness, "Prepare the way of Messer for sheriff." Wherever Mr. Wilson got in a word in his own behalf, the faithful Mr. William was there with a few choice encomiums for Mr. Messer. One would get the impression that the two candidates were in a combination in making their fight. This may be an erroneous impression, but if it is true, then the old timers, the county treasurer and the sheriff are outgeneralling them, by proceeding along the good old fashioned lines of "Everyone for himself and God for us all." Personally I have no interest in their quarrels for the time has about arrived when two good democrats will relieve them of any further fighting on election day, but two candidates tying up together is bad business except in the 17th representative district, and even there the knot, in all probability, will be untied within a month or more.

Warred About Democrats

Republicans, not only locally, but throughout the state, are deeply concerned over the prospective attitude of democrats in the coming republican primaries, and the republican papers are working strenuously to discourage the democrats from carrying out their avowed intention. For instance the Cambridge Guardian, a paper published by Harold David Wilson, who is opposing County Treasurer Hayden for that position, in the republican primaries, has the following to say on the subject:

Some politicians are figuring on a big democratic vote in the primary in favor of McCall. The argument is that there is no contest to speak of on the democratic side and members of that party will therefore be free to do some marking in the other fellow's column if so inclined. Most of them so disposed are considered opposed to Cushing for a reason well understood, and they may take that method to down him in his own political ambition. But they cannot tell which would be the stronger before the people and the more likely to defeat Walsh, and this may give them pause as they hold the little pencil over the republican column on the 21st of September. Things may clarify before then, however, and shifting democrats may know better what to do. They have no right to monkey with the other party's nominations except what the new law foolishly gives them."

This is amusing inasmuch as one of the claims of the Cushing people is that he has proven that he is the stronger man before the people. Furthermore a local democrat discussing the situation with the writer not long ago said: "I am one of many democrats who are going to vote for Cushing in the primaries, because I believe as the others do, that he will be the weaker of the two at the polls."

As a matter of fact Gov. Walsh will defeat either of them and those of the democrats who are going to vote for McCall argue that they will take a chance with McCall as the opponent, but they want to defeat Cushing promptly and beyond peradventure.

In this locality, the democrats who are going to vote the republican ticket are not nearly as interested in the head of the republican ticket as they are in some of the contests nearer home. Many democrats will be found voting blanks on the head of the ticket who will cross the names of candidates for minor offices, such as sheriff and representatives.

A Stranger Mistake

Like Tennyson's little brook, a well known hotel bartender of that name is still running freely, even though temporarily deprived of his liberty by a liquor inspector Tuesday morning. It seems that on Saturday evening a bold, bad man entered Droney's saloon on Broadway with a shotgun on his shoulder and half-shot from the shoulder down, and began talking war and other things. Someone in the party intimated that even though he might be the gun was not loaded. To convince his doubting friend that the gun would go off the fellow aimed it at a lamp and fired. The lamp went out, while the drink with the gun also went out immediately after. By the time the story got to the newspapers it was highly colored, but that has nothing to do with these few lines. The officers were sent out to get the bad man and on Tuesday morning as the bartender in question was leaving Burns' tonorial emporium in Central street, a liquor inspector touched him on the shoulder and informed him that he was wanted at the police station. He went over smilingly, for he was strong in the knowledge of the fact that at the hotel where he is employed they have the utmost respect for the law and don't sell pints and half pints. And he knew that a liquor officer would be taking him in for no other reason than for violation of the liquor law. Upon arriving at the police station his pride received a severe jolt when he learned that he had been mistaken for the bad man, who wasn't to be mentioned in the same breath with him, for good looks, and he went his way wondering.

Some people think the joke is on the bartender, but what about the efficient liquor inspector who doesn't know a hotel bartender when he meets him?

Its Final Location

After all the wrangling over the location for a contagious disease hospital has been exhausted we may yet see the institution located where it was originally planned, adjacent to the Chelmsford street hospital. It is said that one and probably more of the commissioners are sorry that they ever monkeyed with the Pillsbury site.

AMATEUR GOLFERS FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY READY TO EXHIBIT THEIR SKILL

DETROIT, Aug. 25.—Will Francis Outmet succeeded in defending his title as amateur golf champion of the United States? As winner of the open championship in 1913 when he defeated among others, the great British professional Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, and as winner of the amateur championship in 1914, in which he defeated Jerome D. Travers, four times amateur champion, 6 up and 5 to play, there is naturally great interest in what he will do when the amateur golf championship of 1915 is contested for, Aug. 28 to Sept. 4, on the links of the Country club of Detroit.

Will Jerome D. Travers, open champion of the United States, and the other scratch men, turn the tables on Outmet and not only be open as well as amateur champion for 1915, a record never heretofore made in the history of American golf? Will one of the veterans, Charles Evans, Jr., or W. J. Travis, or will one of the youngsters, Philip Carter of the Nassau Country club or Max R. Marston of the Cranford Golf club, Frank W. Dyer of the Montclair Golf club, Hamilton R. Kern of the Ekwanok Country club or some other new star or old star, flash into view as winner of the championship? All of these interesting questions will be answered during the tourney. The winner will receive a gold medal, and his club will receive a gold medal, and his club will receive a gold medal.

A large crowd of Lowell fans went to Boston this afternoon to witness the military parade and the game between the Cubs and the Braves. The game was held back until 4 o'clock to accommodate those who desired to view the parade.

The fight for the first division received an awful set-back yesterday on account of the rain which deprived Lowell of a chance to win another game. Lynn won a double-header and hence has a five game lead. We have four more games to play with Lynn, three of them in this city.

Jesse Burkett has made the statement that Worcester wants faster ball than that afforded by the New England league but according to the fans the game is all right but they'd like someone else besides Jesse at the helm.

Matty Zieser has departed for Louisville where he will proceed at once to show whether or not he can stand the pace. It seems his sale is conditional and if he doesn't prove fast enough he'll be back with us. Matty has flashes of the finest work and then again at times he lacks control. Perhaps a change of scene will bring about the desired results.

Cuke Barrows can go higher if he wishes but he has business interests in Maine that make it profitable for him to be within close touch of his home town and hence he prefers to remain in the New England league.

With Lowell and Lynn playing a game tomorrow and a double-header next week at Spalding park that will go a great way toward settling the matter for the first division there should be something worth looking at on all of the occasions.

The Worcester team have been dubbed "The Rovers" by the Worcester fans inasmuch as they are to roam from city to city for the remainder of the season without touching the home grounds.

Lowell will not be "short" on pitchers as a result of Zieser's departure for Manager Keilner has any number of requests for try-outs on the part of ambitious semi-pros.

Portland's New England league team probably will do a week's barnstorming before breaking up for the season. Their services for this season under Mr. Duffy will be concluded with the afternoon game of Labor day, but games are being arranged for the balance of the week. There will be a game in Portland Wednesday following Labor day with some team yet to be announced and this will serve as a sort of benefit game for the players.

In all probability the other days of the week will find the Duffs playing out of town with Sanford, Skowhegan, Madison and one or two other strong semi-pro. teams as opponents.

In teamwork, Lowell is first at bat and Lawrence is first in the field. Lawrence is third in batting, Portland being second, Lynn is second in the field and Lowell is third. Portland has played more games than any other club, been to bat more times, scored more runs and made most base hits. Lowell is second in hits. Worcester is second in runs.

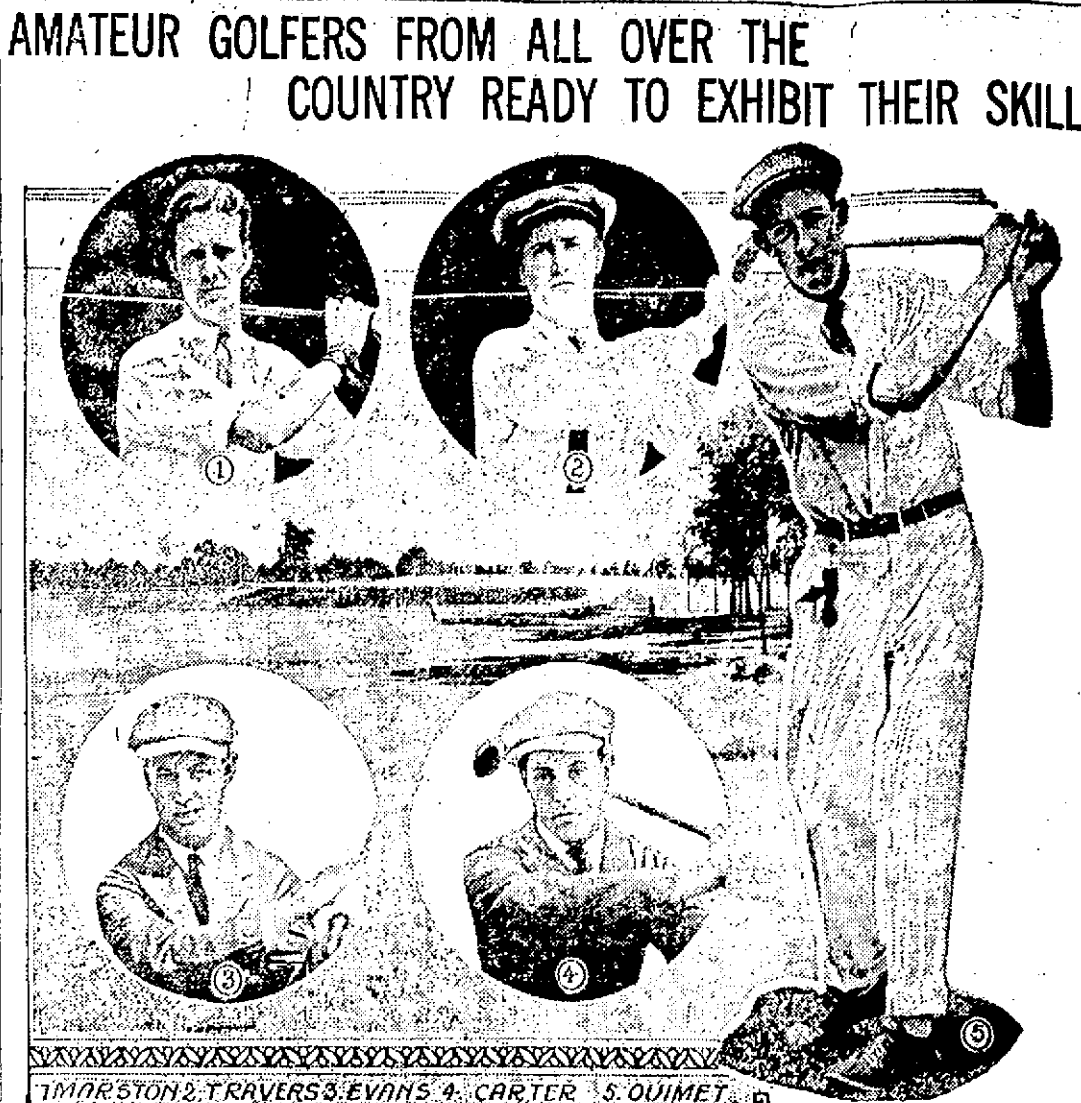

Lewiston is first in sacrifice hits. Lynn has a big margin in stolen bases. Lawrence is first in doubles, but is closely pressed by Portland and Worcester. Portland is first in triples, but is pushed by Lewiston and Lowell. Lawrence is first in home runs. Portland leads in put outs. Manchester is first in assists. Lawrence has made the least number of errors. Worcester has made the most.

The pennant race is over. Hugh Duffy's Portland team cops the bunting in the New England league for the season of 1915 and while there is still a possibility of the Duffs being beaten it is such a slim and remote chance that is hardly considered one at all.

CLABBY OFF FOR AUSTRALIA
CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Jimmy Clabby, the boxer, left for San Francisco today to sail for Australia on Aug. 31. He has been matched to box Les Barry, an Australian, who recently knocked out Eddie McGorry of Oskesh, Wis. The contest is for the middle weight championship.

SOCCER NOTES
There will be a practice game on the Bunting grounds Saturday and this will be the last practice before the league starts, Sept. 4, when the Bunting grounds will meet Beverly on the Bunting grounds. The manager wants the following players to report on the grounds at 2:30: T. Smith, A. Smith, J. Marriot, H. Lowe, Kelly, Molloy, Kershaw, Taylor, Greenhalgh, Costello, Smith, Weddmore and Shaw.

The game will be Bunting vs. So. Lawrence.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 26.—More than a dozen of the greatest amateur golfers in America, playing on teams representing the east and west, expected today to give the Detroit Country club course a thorough try-out in preparation for the national amateur golf tournament which begins here Saturday. The match was to go 18 holes.

The eastern teams of ten men were captained by W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh. Two of his mates were Francis Outmet, national amateur champion, and Jerome E. Travers, national open champion. D. E. Sawyer of Wheaton, Ill., led the western team. The presence of Charles Evans, Jr., of Chicago, western amateur champion, on Sawyer's team, added considerable interest to the event. Travers and Outmet are favorites for championship honors, while Evans, who also has a large following, has been referred to as the hope of the west.

Travers yesterday made the course in 75. The record is 72.

RUBE MARQUARD TRADED IN LEAGUE TEN YEARS

FAMOUS NEW YORK PITCHER SENT TO TORONTO—WANTS HIS RELEASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Richard (Rube) Marquard, left-handed pitcher, was sold yesterday by the New York Nationals to the Toronto club of the International league. Under the terms of the transaction the Giants are to get Pitcher Herbert from the Canadian team. It is understood that all major league clubs waived claims to Marquard because of their unwillingness to pay the high salary which his contract calls for. This salary will undoubtedly be paid off by the two clubs. Marquard declared his unwillingness to join the Toronto club and wants his unconditional release.

Marquard came to New York in 1905, when $11,000 was paid to the Indianapolis club for him. He did not play much until 1911, when he began to develop, and the next year made a record by pitching 19 straight victories. Last season he defeated Pittsburgh in 21 innings, the longest game ever played in the National league.

The New Yorks also announced the purchase of Catcher Robert Schang from the Pittsburgh Nationals for the valuer price. He is a brother of Walter Schang, catcher of the Philadelphia Americans.

CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNAMENT

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Officials of the United States Tennis association announced today that the match between Frederick D. Alexander, former national doubles champion and Davis cup player, and Nathaniel W. Miles of Boston, probably will be given the place of honor on the grand stand coast at the opening of the national championship tournament at Forest Hills next Monday. The match between Harold A. Throckmorton, the boy star, and Edward H. Whitney, the former Harvard captain, has been selected as the next most important event of the opening day.

JAMES TO JOIN BRAVES

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Everything appears to be breaking right for the Braves just at present, the latest big and gratifying thing to cheer the heart of Manager Stallings being that Big Bill James is in the best of shape again and started on his way east from California to join the club.

A telegram reached Stallings from Oroville, Cal., yesterday, conveying this information. It stated that the arm that has bothered James all season has responded to treatment and that he will be ready to help out in the box very shortly. It is expected that James will reach Boston by next Monday.

HARRIS WINS STATE TITLE
BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Aug. 24.—Fred H. Harris of Brattleboro wrestled the state tennis championship from J. G. Nelson of Concord, N. H., yesterday by defeating him in the final round in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2. Harris also won permanent possession of the trophy on which he had two legs.

Harris and Nelson, who are the present holders of the state doubles championship, defeated C. H. Collette of Gardner, Mass., and C. T. Porter of Worcester, Mass., in the semi-final round of the doubles. Tomorrow the victors will meet C. J. Dexter of Philadelphia and A. N. Wilder of New Haven, Conn., in the final.

MEADOW CUP SINGLES
SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The outstanding match today as the tennis players met in the fifth round for the Meadow cup singles cup was that between George M. Church, the Princeton champion, and William M. Johnston of California.

Church is one of the top ranking men of the east and is regarded as one of the likely finalists for the national championship week.

In the other matches T. R. Pell meets Leonard Beckman and William M. Washburn meets G. C. Caner.

FAMOUS GOLFERS COMPETE
DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 26.—More than a dozen of the greatest amateur golfers in America, playing on teams representing the east and west, expected today to give the Detroit Country club course a thorough try-out in preparation for the national amateur golf tournament which begins here Saturday. The eastern teams of ten men were captained by W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh. Two of his mates were Francis Outmet, national amateur champion, and Jerome E. Travers, national open champion. D. E. Travers and Outmet are favorites for championship honors, while Evans, who also has a large following, has been referred to as the hope of the west.

Travers yesterday made the course in 75. The record is 72.

NIGHT RIDERS JAILED ROB EMBASSY ATTACHE

NINE OTHERS CHARGED WITH SIMILAR OFFENCES ON TRIAL IN KENTUCKY

HARTFORD, Ky., Aug. 26.—The long struggle of the authorities with lawlessness in this portion of western Kentucky culminated in the Ohio county circuit court here yesterday when more than three score persons were placed on trial for alleged participation in night riding outrages. When court adjourned for the day, two men had pleaded guilty; nine others were on trial and 53 were awaiting a hearing. The guilty plea of the first two cases called, those of Jerry Clark and Ernest Webster, caused surprise. It had been believed all of the defendants would resist conviction. Clark and Webster were sentenced to three years each in the penitentiary for neglecting a man and a woman. The nine men on trial were indicted with them. Charges against the remainder allege maltreatment of various persons and the murder of a negro.

Scores of persons in Ohio and contiguous counties have been flogged at night and their homes riddled with bullets within the last 10 months by bands of mounted men. Whites and negroes alike have suffered. The authorities say reasons advanced to the victims indicated the night riders were endeavoring to regulate the conduct of communities through intimidation, displace negro workers with white and fix prices which merchants should charge for merchandise.

BEAT WIFE AND CHILD

CHARLESTOWN MAN SET FIRE TO HOUSE AND THEN CUT HIS OWN THROAT

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Lawrence Keenan of Main street, Charlestown, who beat his wife and daughter over the head with a stick of wood, set fire to the house and then cut his own throat yesterday, was still delirious at the Relief hospital last night, and in a weakened condition from loss of blood. His wife, Delia, showed considerable improvement, with little doubt as to her recovery, and their daughter Mary, who suffered least from Keenan's attack, was allowed to go home.

But slight damage resulted from the fire caused by a lighted lamp which Keenan threw into the bed occupied by the two women.

COL. ROOSEVELT SPEAKER

RAPS NATION FOR NOT BEING PREPARED IN ADDRESS AT PLATTSBURG

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Theodore Roosevelt in an address last night at the military instruction camp here, declared that for 13 months the United States had "played an ignominious part among the nations," in that it had "tamely submitted to seeing the weak whom we had endeavored to protect wronged, and had seen our own men, women and children murdered on the high seas without action on our part."

Rooseveltians
Camps are best possible antidotes to hyphenated Americanism.

Professional pacifists, politicians and college sissies must be made to submit to training.

Hyphenated American an active force against America.

Hideous wrong done Belgium greatest crime since close of Napoleonic contests.

It's right to furnish arms to policemen who put down the thug and burglar.

Let us encourage munition makers so we may be able to hold our own when peril comes to us in our turn.

Peril will come if we succeed in persuading great military nations that we are not prepared to undertake defensive wars.

The man who believes in peace at any price should instantly move to China.

It is indefensible for any free man in a free republic to state he will stand by any official, right or wrong, or by any ex-official.

The former president condemned the government for having "not taken the smallest step in the way of preparedness to defend our own rights."

Germany, he contended, was "utterly brutal and ruthless in its disregard of international morality," and declared that it "would be a base abandonment of morality" for American manufacturers of munitions of war to refuse to make shipments "for the use of the armies that are striving to restore Belgium to its own people."

Munition makers who refused to make such shipments should be put, he said, on a "roll of dishonor."

He added that they should be encouraged "to the very limit of their power" to hold out when the hour of peril comes to us in our turn.

BOY DROWN IN QUARRY
BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Six-year-old Acide Houle, son of Mrs. Agnes Houle of Brant avenue, West Quincy, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the deep water of one of the granite pits near his home.

The boy, with five other small chums, was fishing from a ledge where he fell in. His companions, frightened, ran to the fire station, some distance away, and brought the firemen to the rescue. They succeeded after an hour's search in bringing the body to the surface.

TWO DRESS SUIT CASES, THE PROPERTY OF BARON STEPHEN HEDRY DE HEDRY, RIFLED

PITTSFIELD, Aug. 26.—Two dress suit cases belonging to Baron Stephen Hedry De Hedry, attache of the Austro-Hungarian embassy which has summer headquarters in Lenox, were rifled in the Lenox railroad station and a double breasted coat, a gray coat and trousers, a golf suit and a safety razor are missing. Jewels belonging to himself and Mme. De Hedry, said to be worth several hundred dollars, were left untouched in the bottom of the cases. Whether the thieves missed them or whether they were looking for papers of value to the enemies of Austria, is a mystery.

IMMENSE LOSS IN JAMAICA

Havoc By Recent Hurricane Not Half Told at First—90 Per Cent of Northern Banana Crop Destroyed

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Detailed advice received here yesterday from Kingston, Jam., show that the damage caused on the northern side of the island of Jamaica by the hurricane which raged there on Aug. 12 and 13 was greater in numerous instances than indicated by earlier dispatches. The terrific winds felled acres of banana trees, destroying fully 90 per cent of the banana crop, according to the information.

The railway between Port Antonio and Bay Bay was practically all wiped out and wagon roads along the coast were destroyed by the heavy rains.

From Ocho-Rios, Mulgrave, Hope Bay, Port Morant and Montego Bay general damage to crops, buildings, wharves, railways and roads was reported. Many small craft were blown ashore during the height of the storm.

While the loss of life does not appear to have been large, several of the coast points reported one or more persons drowned or killed by falling buildings.

The coconut plantations escaped with small damage, even in the parish of Portland, where the greatest force of the hurricane was felt. Coffee and banana plantations were seriously damaged at certain points. The growers are reported to have already undertaken to restore their plantations, and another banana crop is promised within 10 months.

COSTA GETS NINE MONTHS

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Michael Costa, one of the Italians arrested Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, after the plot at the Commonwealth pier, was sentenced to nine months in the house of correction yesterday by Judge Logan in the South Boston court on a charge of assault and battery on Patrolman Peterson of division 6, South Boston. Costa denied the charge and had four other witnesses to corroborate his testimony. Patrolman Peterson and Special Officer Nash gave positive testimony against him.

It is finished in black walnut with quartered oak panels, has a built-in combination desk and bookcase, marble lavatory, and two roomy closets; the dining room finished in quartered oak, has built-in side board with open cabinet top, built-in china cabinet with three shelves, walls and ceiling in oil and colors, natural light from three sides and an entrance direct from both the north and west piazzas; between the dining room and the kitchen is a commodious butler's pantry, abundantly equipped with over-head and beneath cupboards, drawers, sideboard and throughout in ash; the roomy kitchen is at the extreme south end of the house—a light and pleasant room finished in ash; leading from the kitchen are—the maid's dining room, finished in ash; the maid's bath room, finished in ash; a spacious pantry with extensive built-in refrigerator, many cupboards and drawers, marble cake board, copper sink, etc.; all finished in ash; also a clothes closet connected by chute with the laundry in the basement; coal for the kitchen is delivered directly from piazza into bin, as is the ice into the refrigerator, and as needed is taken from handy chute at the level of the kitchen hallway floor. The second floor front hall is the counterpart of the first floor front hall, and leading from this hall are—the master chamber at the northeast corner finished in mahogany, has built-in, marble lavatory and cabinet, an extensive closet equipped with drawers, and is naturally lighted from three sides; the sewing room at the northwest corner finished in cherry, has two built-in closets, and is naturally lighted from two sides; the chamber in the southwest corner finished in maple with bird's eye maple panels, has built-in marble lavatory and cabinet, a large closet equipped with drawers, a second entrance from the rear hall, and is naturally lighted from three sides; the chamber in the southeast corner finished in bird's eye maple, has two large built-in closets both equipped with drawers, a second entrance from the rear hall, and is naturally lighted from two sides; also opening from the second floor front hall are two large storage closets—each of these is finished in cherry, has a door opening into the inside door, and both are equipped for extensive storage either by hanging or in drawer, or in cupboard. In the main house the thresholds are marble, all gas fixtures are equipped with automatic lighting attachment, each chamber is connected by push button call with the kitchen, the southeast chamber is connected by speaking tube with the kitchen, every room and every hall in the house has at least one over-size steam radiator, all windows are fitted with screens—the frame of which matches the wood work of the room; there are extensive piazzas—extending to the four sides of the house; the porte cochere at the carriage entrance at the side of the house is set on heavy granite posts, that conform to the granite steps at the entrance to the house—and is midway of the driveway leading from street to stable; the building while of the most substantial character and durable finish does need some few repairs and some attention, yet the expenditures for the same will prove merely nominal when compared with the original outlay. The rear hall—the ell—is finished in cherry, and leading therefrom are—a large and roomy bath room finished in black walnut, and naturally lighted—the wall closets however are not included; a small west chamber finished in cherry, having a large closet equipped with drawers; a middle east chamber finished in black walnut, has ample closet and is naturally lighted from one side; at the extreme southern end of the rear hall are two splendid maids' chambers finished in cherry—one on either side of the hall; also opening from the rear hall is a clothes closet connected by chute with laundry in the basement, a door to the roof piazza, and also an entrance to the stairway to the third floor. The third floor is the size of the building—house and ell, at the front is a very large room finished in cherry, with a vestibule opening to roof porch at the front of the house, that is naturally lighted from three full sides and was originally planned for a billiard room; there are also set off by temporary partitions three extensive storage rooms—parts of which could be easily finished into several chambers. The basement extends under the entire house and is divided by partition into—an excellently equipped laundry of size at the extreme southern end with a stone step entrance direct to clothes yard; also into storage rooms for the keeping of preserves, etc.; milk, etc.; work room, boiler room and coal bins, etc.; the basement is naturally lighted from four full sides.

THE STABLE—At the rear of the land at the Canton street front is the stable, the first floor of which is divided by stone doors into two sections—the front section has four roomy stalls, broad stable door, a harness room equipped with glass front harness rack, storage drawers, set bowl, and toilet—also broad and narrow entrances from the front driveway; the rear section is provided with a wash stand, workman's bench with mechanic's bench vice, open floor for three or more automobiles—also entrance from rear driveway; both sections are sheathed and painted and have a height of post of 10 ft. or more; over the front section is a high posted second story—with hay loft above; the main floors are unusually well lighted naturally from four sides, are artificially lighted by electricity, and the building is equipped for steam heating; there is a high basement (5 ft. post) with concrete floor under the entire building, the rear section of the stable is finished with a work shop and provided with workman's bench, mechanic's bench vice, etc., and the front section is set off by brick partition as a stable collar. The architecture of the stable is in keeping with the house—even to the high cut granite foundation, roof projections, slated roof, style of windows, blinds, etc., on top of all this is a cupola provided with weather vane.

THE LAND—The land has a total area of 22,433 sq. ft., a frontage of 100 ft. on Middlesex street, a frontage of 138 ft. on Canton street, the house sets back 40 ft. from Middlesex street and at least 50 ft. from Canton street, the stable is 30 ft. back from the nearest point to the house, there is a concrete driveway leading from Middlesex street under the porte cochere to the stable, a concrete driveway direct from Canton street to the stable, a second driveway from Canton street leads across the extreme rear of the lot and around the stable to the basement beneath the land is much ornamented by trees, shrubbery and vine—fruit in great variety and abundance, is laid down to an even handsome and level lawn, and the two largest ornamental iron urns at the street front are included in the sale of Lot One.

NOTA BENE

The premises will be thrown open for examination and inspection after 10 a. m. the day of sale. The premises can also be inspected between two and five o'clock each afternoon by application at the door—beginning with the Saturday next preceding the day of sale. Small plans showing the division of the residential real estate in detail may be had upon application at the office of the auctioneer.

LOTS TWO AND THREE

Lot Two and Lot Three are adjoining lots on Middlesex street immediately west of Lot One. Each has a total area of 6694 sq. ft. of land, each has a frontage of 50 ft. on a depth of 130 ft., is perfectly regular in shape, is of even grade, was formerly down to the southeast of lawn, and is richly possessed of handsome and mature shade trees or thirty young fruit trees. There are no more desirable lots in this vicinity than the two lots just described. An inspection of them will not prove disappointing.

LOT FOUR

Lot Four is a very attractive corner lot that has both size and mature development, a total area of 5750 sq. ft. of land, a frontage of 75 ft. on Middlesex street, a frontage of 130 ft. on Stevens street, a uniform depth of 120 ft., a width at the rear of 50 ft., very little labor attention will provide a rich even surface lawn over the entire lot, upon it are more than twenty mature fruit trees, seven shade and ornamental trees, a few are well set off from Stevens street by hedge and shrubbery. All the preliminary expenditure, work and development, to bring this lot to maturity and the point of building upon have already been completed.

NOTA BENE

Lot One, Lot Two, Lot Three, and Lot Four are graded slightly above the level of Middlesex, Canton and Stevens streets, are separated therefrom by heavy cut granite curb—with ornamental designation posts at the driveways and walks.

LOT FIVE

Lot Five in some ways is the most attractive lot upon the premises. It has a total area of 10,862 sq. ft. of land, a frontage of 70 ft. on Stevens street—and is set off therefrom by hedge and shrubbery, extends back parallel with the southerly lines of Lots Two, Three and Four, is absolutely regular in shape, is possessed of a substantial two and one-half story building 35x25 ft.—on concrete foundation and two story annex 20x20 ft.; the larger building was originally erected with the idea that sometime it might be converted into a house, the second floor is free from partition and open to the roof, the first floor is also free from obstruction with the exception of temporary stanchions used by Mr. Fifield for his Jersey cows; beneath the whole structure is a high posted cellar with cement walls—formerly used for vegetable storage; the two story annex at the southeast corner was formerly used for deer and poultry; there are also two single story buildings—one 20x20 and the other 16x11 ft.—now partially open or very close to the southerly boundary line of Lot Five which are to be included in the sale thereof—notice is hereby given that said buildings are reserved from the sale of Lot Six. There are two single story buildings—20x10 and 16x11 ft.—which are now either partially on Lot Five or very close to its southerly boundary line that are to be included in the sale of Lot Five and notice is hereby given that said buildings are reserved from the sale of Lot Six; the land with Lot Five is level, is a very good soil with Stevens street, and it too has its fair share of shade trees—together with a few fruit trees.

LOT SIX

Lot Six has a total area of 7992 sq. ft. of land, a frontage of 45 ft. on Stevens street, an average depth of 117 ft., is supplied with a dozen or more mature fruit trees and vines, is practically at grade with Stevens street, is directly opposite Nos. 63 and 65 and is adjoined on its southerly side by No. 74 Stevens street. Stevens street is one of the most pleasant to live upon and certainly one of the most genteel residence streets in the Highland district and there is not a location upon the street that exceeds Lot Six to build upon.

LOTS SEVEN AND EIGHT

Lot Seven and Lot Eight contain 8300 and 6281 sq. ft. of land respectively, adjoin each other, are just south of Lot One on Canton street—where each has an equal frontage of 43 ft. Upon these lots are several green house structures—but in the making of the division between the two lots no attention was paid to the green houses, there are more than twenty-five full grown fruit trees upon the two lots—not to speak of a considerable amount of attractive shrubbery; upon Lot Eight there is a 70 ft. 6 in. driven well that for a long time has been the mecca of the neighborhood because of its exceptionally pure and cold water—the supply from which seems absolutely inexhaustible; the lots are directly opposite No. 24 Canton street and are set off from said street by fence. That portion of the green house structure now extending over the southerly boundary line of Lot One is included in the purchase of Lot Eight—and notice is hereby given that said portion of said green house is reserved from the sale of Lot One; there have recently been erected upon Canton street several excellent and modest residences, yet the lots so used were barren in their development—when compared with all these lots offer.

NOTA BENE

The Fifield Residential Estate—herewith described in eight separate and distinct parcels—has streets on three sides of it with a combined frontage on Middlesex street of 275 ft., with a combined frontage on Canton street of 284 ft., a combined frontage on Stevens street of 266 ft., has a total area of 77,615 sq. ft. of land—equalling 1 3/4 acres—is adjoined on the southerly side by the residences of Mr. Frank E. Bailey and Mr. Robert G. Bartlett, perhaps has had as intelligent and thoughtful consideration in its development and creation as any of the most expensive residences in Lowell. Across Middlesex street are the three handsome residential properties of Mr. Charles E. Young, Mr. Charles A. Brown and Mr. John B. Pilling; and on the opposite corner of Middlesex and Stevens streets is the city residence of Mr. Frank E. Putnam.

MIDDLESEX STREET AT MIDDLESEX VILLAGE

LOT ELEVEN—THREE ACRES

Promptly at Half Past Four O'Clock

Lot Eleven comprises nearly three acres of land—129,445 sq. ft.—on Middlesex street just beyond Webster street and directly opposite No. 1533 Middlesex street. It has a frontage of 199 ft., extends back more than 600 ft. to Black Brook, is 140 ft. west of Webster street, lies perfectly for development, is regular in shape, its long boundary lines are parallel, is quickly adaptable to a sub-division, is very useful as it is trolley cars at this point furnish a 15 minutes service all day and into the night, is but seventeen or eighteen minutes trolley ride to Merrimack Square—any time day or evening (double track service), the street is stone paved for a considerable distance east or west of this point. Webster street—a comparatively new and accepted city street—extends from Middlesex street to Princeton boulevard—east of the herewith described land and all the time parallel therewith, today it is improved to the extent of seven substantial homes.

LOT TWELVE—OVER TWO ACRES

Promptly at Four Forty-five O'Clock

The land extends from No. 453 Princeton street (boulevard) by circular corner and curved line 460 ft. to the center of Black Brook on Baldwin street, the trolley cars at Middlesex street are but 420 ft. via Baldwin street from the northerly boundary of the land, the trolley cars at Westford street are not more than 350 ft. via Princeton street from the easterly boundary of the land, building improvements have taken place right up to the line of the land on Princeton street (Boulevard) and right up to the line of the land on Baldwin street, the Princeton street (Boulevard) front of the land is at the grade of the street, the Baldwin street front of the land is at the grade of the street, the land at the rear of the lot is at a lower level—every bit of it however is ready at any minute for improvement. THE HEIFER POISONING A THRILLING VOYAGE

MAN SUES FOR VALUE OF ANIMAL—DEFENDANT CLAIMS SHE ATE HIS PAINT

The "calf" case mentioned in a previous edition of The Sun has developed into a "heifer" case, for suit has been entered and "heifer" is the word used in the complaint. The story of the heifer's death has already been told. She ate green paint, was taken sick and died. The names of the principals and lawyers in the case, however, have not been mentioned. The plaintiff is Franklin Cooper of Salem Depot, N. H. The defendant is a minor and the suit is brought by his father, William Cooper. The defendant in the case is the Kimball System incorporated. Thomas G. Robbins is counsel for the defendant and Haven G. Hill for the plaintiff. The amount mentioned is $300.

The defendant was painting a sign board at Salem Depot, N. H., and the heifer, alleged to be a very valuable one, ate some green paint that had been left in a can and then shuffled off to the happy hunting grounds. There were other colored paints there and it is taken for granted that either the white, black or red paint would have been fatal as the green. The board on which the defendant worked was situated in a pasture where the plaintiff's heifer was "boarding."

The defendant thinks he should be compensated for the paint consumed by the unsuspecting heifer.

The plaintiff, in his declaration, sets up that the defendant had used and control of the sign board used for advertising purposes and that he carelessly and negligently left certain cans containing paint near said sign board. The plaintiff had also leased the pasture for his heifer and the defendant's paint killed the heifer.

The defendant denies each and every allegation and avers that if the heifer ate any paint the heifer was trespassing on the land held by the defendant and that the defendant owes plaintiff nothing. The case will, in all probability be heard next month.

SINK NO MORE SHIPS WITHOUT WARNING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, conferred with Secretary Lansing nearly an hour this morning and while both refused to discuss their meeting in any way, it was understood the ambassador reiterated that it was not the intent of the German government that any Americans should be lost on the Atlantic.

Another communication, supplementing that which the ambassador transmitted to the state department Tuesday, is expected from Berlin and pending its receipt, Count Bernstorff will remain at the embassy in Washington.

It is confidently believed the next word from Germany will be the announcement that pending further negotiations, submarine warfare on passenger ships will be discontinued and that submarine commanders already have been instructed to sink no more channel vessels without warning.

It is understood that Germany, at the same time, will revive her proposal for a modus vivendi for relaxation of British restrictions on neutral commerce. In German quarters it was said that this step, which had been in contemplation in Germany for some time, could now be announced because of the victories in Poland. German officials, it was explained, consider that the victories to their arms in the campaign against the Russians permit Germany to recede a step on the sea.

BOY DROWNED IN CANAL

Thomas Roddy, aged 15 years and 8 months, and employed in the weaving department of the Bigelow-Hartford Co., lost his life by drowning while swimming in the canal in the rear of the mill off Market street shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon. The body was recovered shortly afterward and although the pulmotor was pressed into service, the young man's life could not be saved.

Roddy, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Roddy of 99 Fulton street, ate his dinner in the mill this noon and shortly before 12:30 o'clock, he went bathing in the canal in the rear of the mill with a number of companions. The young man was wearing a bathing suit and had been enjoying a dip for a few minutes, when one of his companions named Gerald Landers accidentally jumped on him while in the water.

Roddy went to the bottom and did not come to the surface again. The other boys dived for him, but their efforts to locate him were in vain. In the meantime a hurried message for the pulmotor was sent to the police station a few hundred yards away and Sergt. David Petrie and Sergt. William Groux were soon on the canal banks with the machine.

Employees of the mill grappled the canal with hooks and finally hooked the body. Sergeants Petrie and Groux applied the pulmotor and had the apparatus going for some time when Dr. M. A. Tighe and Dr. John H. Donovan arrived on the premises. The doctors examined Roddy and pronounced him dead. The body was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker C. H. Molloy.

200,000 SEE MILITARY PARADE IN BOSTON

7000 Militiamen, Headed by Gov. Walsh, March for Benefit of Visiting Governors

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—The Massachusetts Volunteer Militia mustered to its fullest extent, 7000 strong, paraded today for the benefit of the visiting governors and a street crowd estimated at 200,000 people. Gov. Walsh led his troops as commander-in-chief, while the rear guard was made up of 30 governors and former governors of 28 states in automobiles. Just after the head of the procession passed the state house where the wives and friends of the visiting state officials from other states were assembled, the parade halted and the governors in their motor cars passed rapidly through to the front and joined Gov. Walsh at the reviewing stand at the foot of Beacon Hill. The day was perfect for marching.

The militia mobilized very speedily during the forenoon, some of the far-off batteries coming over the road, while far distant commands started with the dawn. Every company reported promptly and the parade started on time.

A feature of the mobilization was the additional equipment which each command carried, including rapid fire guns, trenching tools, and full hospital and signal corps apparatus. The cavalry and artillery branch of the service were well up to the maximum in equipment.

The troops marched over a four-mile route through the business part of the city and occupied about three hours in reaching the reviewing stand.

Speakers at Business Session
Aside from the parade the program of the governors' conference included automobile trips, luncheons and a business session. At the latter the speakers and their topics were "Abolition of Continued to page two

FREIGHT HANDLERS QUIT GARRISON RAPS TEDDY

50 EMPLOYEES OF N. Y. N. H. & H. HOUSE IN BRIDGEPORT, CONN., JOIN STRIKERS

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 26.—Fifty freight handlers employed in the Water street houses of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, walked out today joining the 110 men from the Whiting street freight houses, who yesterday struck for increased wages. The walk-out was quiet.

The management of the Star Shirt Co., where 400 girls have been on strike for the 8-hour day, posted a notice closing the plant indefinitely.

It was announced that both the American Federation of Labor and the Connecticut Federation of Labor are rushing more organizers here to aid in handling the situation.

Three strikes in as many boiler shops were settled today and the E. H. H. Smith Silver Co. has granted the 5-hour schedule voluntarily. More than 15 meetings of strikers were in progress during the morning in various hotels where workers were current of other walk-outs to come.

Three Strikers Arrested
Three strikers, a woman and two men, were arrested after a clash with the police near the Sals Textile Manufacturing company's plant. In court, on breach of the peace charges, the woman was fined, and the two men were fined and sent to jail.

Two strikers who took part in the Crane company's shops in the west end were also in court on similar charges. One of the men was heavily fined and the other was given a small fine and a jail sentence.

The strikers at the Crown, George C. Batcheller and La Restia corset shops, were still unsettled, as the strikers say the wages schedules offered by the companies are not satisfactory. An aggregate of about 1200 are out at the three shops. The Biss Narrow Fabric Co. has granted its employees the 8-hour day but the latter say that recognition of the union has been refused and they are standing out for it.

PAFFAS LOCKED UP

Costas Pappas, who was defaulted in police court this forenoon, appeared in court this afternoon and his sentence was again deferred until tomorrow. Inasmuch as Costas' bail expired this morning at the time of the default, the prisoner was locked up this afternoon and will remain in a cell until tomorrow unless he is bailed out before that time. Costas was found guilty of illegal sale of liquor.

FOUND DEAD IN BED

Frank Donnelly, a well known resident of Belvidere, was found dead in his bed at his home, 76 East Merrimack street, at 6:15 o'clock this morning. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner J. V. Meigs, who stated death was due to natural causes.

NO MALARIA IN LOWELL

It was reported that there are several cases of malaria in Lowell as the result of persons being bitten by mosquitoes, but no confirmation of the report was forthcoming at the office of the board of health or at the hospitals. "We have not heard of any cases," said Agent Bates of the board of health, "but of course the doctors are not obliged to report cases of malaria at this office." It was stated at the city hall, however, that a Lowell physician who was bitten on the arm by a mosquito had to have his arm operated upon.

HEARD OF GERMAN PLOT

"Some Lowell Germans have made plans to blow up a bridge tonight somewhere between this city and White River Junction," thus spoke William Stewart Higgins after marching into the police station shortly after 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. "And I thought I would put the police wise," continued the visitor.

Officer Hicks-on-eyed Higgins for a moment and got wise directly with the result that the man was lodged in a cell in order to plan how the German plot might be averted.

OFF TO BOSTON PARADE

Local Military Companies Left in Full Ranks This Morning — The Roster

The Lowell companies of the National Guard of Massachusetts left this morning for Boston, where they will take part in the monster parade in connection with the general mobilization of the volunteer state troops as ordered by Gov. Walsh.

The trip to the Hub was made by special train, which included a Pullman for the ten horses to be utilized by the mounted men of the Lowell contingent. The train rolled out of the station shortly after 8.30 o'clock.

The members of Companies K, G and C of the Sixth regiment and M of the Ninth as well as those of Tabor's Sixth Regiment band assembled at their respective quarters at the armory at 8 o'clock and the final arrangements for the trip were made. The boys later gathered in the drill shed, while the band took a position in Westford street in front of the armory and at 9.15 o'clock, the "Forward, march" signal was given by Maj. Colby T. Kittredge. The band struck up and the soldiers marched to the railroad station by way of Westford, Chelmsford, Thorndike and Middlesex streets.

Hundreds of people were lined along the course of the parade and the marching soldiers were viewed with keen interest. The sidewalks surrounding the railroad station were lined up with people and among the spectators to give the "boys" a send-off was Hon. Samuel P. Hadley, former justice of the local police court.

The special train with the stall-car attached in the rear rolled on track 3 at 9.25 o'clock and was immediately boarded by the militiamen who had gathered in front of the American Express Co. office. At 9.35 the train moved out.

The roster of the parade from the armory to the station was as follows: Major Colby T. Kittredge, Battalion Adjutant; Harry G. Sheldon, Sergeant; H. J. Roberts, Batt. Sergeant; Major George D. Cole, Capt. Harold Patten, ordnance department, Eighth infantry; Capt. Lewis G. Huntington, commissary officer; Sergt.-Maj. C. M. Miner, drum major; Batt. Q. M. Winifred C. MacBrayne.

Tabor's Sixth Regiment band, Z. I. Bissonette, chief musician, came next and the mascot of the band, Amos Bennett, was right on deck. Company K came next with Capt. J. N. Gregg in command. When Company G with Capt. Walter H. Jones; Company C, Capt. G. W. Peterson and Company M, Lieut. D. E. Christian. It was figured that about 95 per cent. of the men were present at the armory, making a total with the musicians of about 275 men.

The run to the North station took about 45 minutes and upon reaching Boston the men detrained, the three companies of the Sixth going to the Charles river embankment at the corner of Otter and Beacon streets, while

Hoodlums are at Work

There has been more or less thieving and other brands of rowdiness going on at the Aiken street grounds nights, and it was stated today that the hoodlums are at work again. A night or two ago they broke into a chest and took a quantity of playground supplies. They forced the lock to the chest and it will go hard with them if the police succeed in ferreting them out.

to the state department to supplement his telegram of Tuesday or the overnight news dispatches containing the German chancellor's statement broadening the interpretation of the United States probably would be made in the case of the Arabic. The ambassador, however, reiterated his previous disclaimer of any intent that Americans should be harmed and it was indicated that today's conference was arranged by the state department rather than by the ambassador.

Count Bernstorff's visit to Secretary Lansing and the advances from Berlin containing the German chancellor's statement have put a much better face on the whole situation. There is a notable relaxation of tension at the White House and at the state department. It was made plain at both places today that while officials were much encouraged by the apparent desire of Germany to avoid a break with the United States, the president will not finally decide on his course until he has before him a definite statement of the Berlin government's intentions. It seems certain now that there will be diplomatic exchanges in the Arabic case.

CHANCELLOR GIVES HOPE

BERLIN, Aug. 26, via London, 11 a. m.—The Associated Press is in a position to state on the best authority that the Arabic incident may be considered as eliminated as a source of discord between Germany and America. It was made plain at both places today that while officials were much encouraged by the apparent desire of Germany to avoid a break with the United States, the president will not finally decide on his course until he has before him a definite statement of the Berlin government's intentions. It seems certain now that there will be diplomatic exchanges in the Arabic case.

THE WHOLE TRIANGULAR RAILROAD SYSTEM

LONDON, Aug. 26, 11.55 a. m.—The invaders of Russia, with Ososwetz safely in their hands, are now rapidly gaining the whole triangular railroad system which, with its apex at Bialystok, also serves Grodno and Ososwetz. The mass of heavy artillery freed by the fall of Ososwetz and Kovno, is now being brought against Brest-Litovsk and Grodno, but not without great difficulties.

Hereafter field maneuvering will count more for the German armies than the use of heavy artillery against fortresses, but open field movements may be checked by the reported determination of the Russians to dig themselves in when their line has been re-formed back of Brest-Litovsk.

No further advance has been reported along the Riga-Kovno line, which presents a perilous problem to the Russians, but the Austrians and Germans are getting rapidly within range of Brest-Litovsk notwithstanding the obstacles offered by the swampy nature of that region. No hint has been given that the Russians intend any retreat, but their armies will be trapped along this line.

Capital Punishment," Govs. W. P. Hunt of Arizona and Edward F. Dunne of Illinois.

"Duty and Responsibility," of the Governor in Dealing With Prisoners," former-Gov. Cole L. Bleas of South Carolina.

Gov. Rolland Spaulding of New Hampshire was the presiding officer. Tonight a dinner will be given the governors and their wives by Mayor Curley. This will be followed by a river carnival at Waltham.

Att'y Gen. Gregory Speaks

The thanks of the administration at Washington for the resolution adopted by the governors on Tuesday, pledging support to President Wilson, was extolled by General Thomas W. Gregory, who was passing through the city.

Mr. Gregory said that this was a time in which the administration felt the need of being in close touch with the states and such an encouraging expression as was sent to the president was greatly appreciated, especially as it was extended by a body in which party lines had been eliminated.

Bleas Talks on Lynching

Former Governor Cole Bleas of South Carolina in an address delivered here today before the governors' conference on "The Duty and Responsibility of Chief Executives in Dealing with Prisoners," declared that the lynching of men in the south for certain crimes is a protection to civilization. He condemned the "third degree" in dealing with prisoners and expressed the opinion that it was worse in some respects than lynching.

"The money we spend for courts and prisoners is very ill laid out," said Governor Bleas. He continued in part: "We make by distrust, the chief, the burglar, and incendiary, and by his point and fall we keep him so. An acceptance of the sentiment of love throughout Christendom for a season would bring the felon and the outcast to our side in tears, with the devotion of his faculties to our service."

Condemns "Third Degree"

"Within the past few weeks we read in the newspapers of a man who made an attempt upon the life of another being pined with questions until he was too weak to talk, then being walked up and down the corridors of his prison to revive him, then pined with questions again, and subjected to God alone knows what else, in the administration of the 'third degree.' Later this prisoner was found on the floor of his cell with his skull crushed in and it was stated that he had climbed to the top of his cell door and jumped to the floor, killing himself. Whether he was murdered or whether he really committed suicide I do not know; but this I do know, that the suicide of any man would hardly be unnatural under such circumstances, and that the treatment accorded him, before conviction, would have been a disgrace to our civilization even had it occurred after he had been tried and sentenced."

"This 'third degree' method that is practiced in the north and the east and the west—less frequently, I am glad to say in the south—whether a man be killed during his administration, or whether he be driven to commit suicide, or whether he be tortured sometimes into confessing crimes of which he be innocent, is barbarity in a sneaking form, under the sanction of law, and those guilty of practicing it evidence a spirit as mean and contemptible as the malice which animates the midnight assassin."

Lynching As Protection

Three years ago I had the pleasure of addressing this conference in Richmond. My remarks were telegraphed throughout the nation, and I was heralded to the world as a chief executive who advocated mob violence. I do not propose to go into a discussion of that here; it is entirely beside the question. Suffice it for me to say that for the unspeakable crime is a protection to our civilization, while the practice of this 'third degree' violates the letter of our constitution at its most vital point and is a blow to the

PARTIES WENT TO BEACH

WOOD'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE AT REVERE BEACH—FOUR OTHER CARS FOLLOWED

One special car loaded with students and teachers of Wood's Business college left Merrimack square at 9.30 o'clock this morning enroute for Revere beach where they held their annual outing. On the arrival of the party at the resort bathing was indulged in by all, after which a sumptuous shore dinner was served. Following the dinner an informal musical was carried out to which every one contributed and this feature proved decidedly enjoyable. In the afternoon a list of sports was run off, the attractions along the boulevard were visited and dancing was enjoyed. The start home will be made at an early hour this evening.

Four special cars loaded with adults and children left the square shortly after the car carrying the Wood party for the summer resort on the regular weekly excursion conducted by the Bay State Street Railway company.

SUN BREVITIES

John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers' union will arrive in this city early this evening and will be the principle speaker of the Woolen Workers' union to be held tonight at the Trades & Labor hall. He will remain in Lowell until Saturday morning.

A slight gas explosion occurred at the local armory last evening but no damage was caused. Gas was escaping from a pilot in the water heater and when one of the militiamen applied a match an explosion followed.

A telephone alarm summoned a portion of the fire department to the home for S. B. Butler at the corner of School and Middlesex streets at 6.04 o'clock last night for a slight fire in the oven of a gas stove. There was no damage.

HOME AFTER 30 YEARS

Patrick W. Daley of No. Dakota
Visits His Parents on Cedar St.
—Prominent Railroadman

Hearty and with the same genial disposition that won him countless friends in his boyhood days, Patrick W. Daley, a former resident of this city, but now of Dickinson, N. Dakota, after an absence of nearly thirty years, returned to Lowell to pay respect to his aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Daley of Cedar street. He arrived here Monday and as he stepped off the train at the Merchants station, he recognized Police Officer Jack Conway, a boyhood pal.

"Gee whiz, but this burg has changed since I last saw it in 1886," said Mr. Daley, after taking a peek at the Federal Shoe Shop and the surrounding buildings.

"Yes, it has changed some," replied the policeman. "But wait till you see the city hall, the post office, the Memorial building, the new Sun building, the magnificent churches and other structures down town, and if you've got anything in Dakota to equal them I'll eat a railroad tie."

Mr. Daley reluctantly begged to be excused as he was bubbling over with joy in anticipation of meeting his parents, and after promising the guardian of the law that he would call on him at his earliest opportunity, he hastened to his parents' home on Cedar street, the place where he was taught the golden rule by a loving mother and kind and industrious father, both of whom are well along in years. But time has dealt kindly with them and today they are in excellent health. The meeting of parents and son was most affectionate and all three were superlatively happy.

When supper was ready he occupied the same seat at the table as he did nearly thirty years ago and enjoyed the best meal he had partaken since he last sat at his mother's table. During the evening friends by the score called to see Mr. Daley and to welcome him back to the old home even for a visit.

Last evening he was the guest of the Hillside Associates and it was some reception. In introducing Mr. Daley to the members, Chairman Eastham said the club was being honored by the presence of "a man who left Lowell practically penniless and by grit and perseverance made good." When Mr. Daley arose to speak he received an ovation and after thanking the members, he spoke of his travels.

When Florence Greeley said "Go west young man" he certainly gave good advice, for there is every opportunity for all who want to roll up their sleeves and go to work. But if you don't intend to work keep away for the western people, although noted for their hospitality, have no patience with a drone. I've seen immense fields of corn and oats actually burn up for want of men to harvest the crops. I know several men who made their way west on the "bumper," who, after working on the farms a couple of years and saving their money, went into the cattle raising business on a small scale and today these men are among the biggest and most successful ranch owners in the west. It was in 1886 when I left Lowell. I went to New York and followed railroading. I gradually worked my way west until I finally settled in Dickinson, N. Dakota, where I am superintendent of transportation of the Northern Pacific railroad. I kept in touch with Lowell affairs by reading The Lowell Sun, and say, boys, but I do relish that "Quarter of a Century" column, for it brings me back to the good old days when with Charley Farrell, Dick Conway, Billy Hawes and all the old boys I played on the South common.

An appetizing luncheon was served and a musical and literary program was carried out, as follows: Songs by Bert Mitchell, George Sawtelle, Joe Coleman, Ted Buckley and Phil Riley; recitation, "How I Caught the Biggest Fish," Ben Williston; Bryan's "Cross of Thorns" speech, Andrew Swanson; duet, "The Fishermen," John Fenneman and Joe Hockney; luck and wing dance, George Davis; Highland fling, Dick Carter and Capt. McNulty.

Mr. Daley will remain in Lowell for another week and will then return to the west.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

"Get the best play obtainable, regardless of expense," was the order that the new owners of the Opera House issued to the local manager, and that the latter has made good at the start is attested by his selection. He did go to considerable expense, but as he was authorized to do so, he feels that the public will show its appreciation by turning out in large numbers to greet his introductory offering.

"Within the Law," in the play that will be presented during the opening week. It comes to Lowell with a list of recommendations a mile long and as several of the Emerson players already appeared in this powerful drama they are well qualified to give a correct interpretation of it.

Byard Veiller wrote "Within the Law" he did not realize, perhaps, that he was giving the stage a plot that was destined to make phenomenal and enduring theatrical history. Its record proves its assertion. "Within the Law" opened at the Eltinge theatre in New York City one night with little knowledge of it in that exacting and capricious metropolis, save that it was a melodrama by an unknown author. Two years later, it was still running at the same theatre to crowded houses and the play and author's name were known the world over.

The Emerson players who will offer the production make up without any doubt the finest stock company in all New England and the roster includes stock stars who are well known throughout the country. Miss Ann O'Day, the leading lady, who will be seen as Mary Turner, the character originally portrayed by Jane Cowl, is a gifted actress. Miss O'Day has had wonderful stock experience, having been in Kansas City for two seasons, later with the Majestic players in Tulsa, N. Y., and with several other high class organizations. She is a beautiful blonde, young and talented and displays a fondness for the newest creations in dress.

Homer Barton, the leading man, is sure to become a great favorite with Lowell audiences. Mr. Barton has been with several big Broadway attractions and has also been identified with some of the best stock companies in the United States. For three full years he was the leading man at the Empire theatre in Providence and later was at Duluth and Indianapolis with Wright Huntington, scoring wonderful success in all cities.

Dora Booth, the second woman, is one of the best stock actresses at the theatre and everywhere that she has played she has been a great favorite. Miss Booth has been with the Keith and Poli interests for several seasons and her long stock experience will make her a valuable member of the Emerson players. Carson Davenport, the character man has been with many stock and road productions and for two years appeared in "Little Women" under the management of William A. Brady. Clara Sidney, the character woman, is another who will become a favorite. Miss Sidney has just finished a three years' engagement with Oliver Moroson, playing the character part in "Peg O' My Heart" with great success. Dorel Goodwin, the ingenue has been with several Cohan and Harris productions, originating the ingenious role in "After the Fall" and later appearing under A. H. Wood's management in "Potash and Perlmutter."

Joseph Cretan, who made such a great hit in Boston last summer while playing with the Majestic players at the Majestic theatre in Boston will also be seen with the Emerson players. Cretan is well known throughout New England and has many friends right here in Lowell.

Frank Wright, who will direct the Emerson players, is an exceptionally clever director and is rated one of the best producers in stock. He has been with the Emerson stock in New York and with the Casino, Dallas, Texas, at the latter place directing such stars as Lily Cahill, who appeared in "Under Cover" and Orme Caldern, who was one of the stars in "Within the Law."

Seats for the opening performances are on sale.

was specially written for the star by Charles Horan. Originally this picture had a different name, but when the picture was about half completed it was discovered that the title had been previously copyrighted by another writer. The first title was then dropped, but work went on in the making of the remaining part of the picture just the same. It was only after the completed picture was reeled off that Miss Wehlen exclaimed "When a Woman Loves" would be a good title for the picture ever since. Somehow, it admirably fits the subject in hand, supporting the little actress in Mr. Arthur Ashler, the film star, while there are 21 other principles. It should be stated that Miss Wehlen originally came to America to appear at the New York Casino in the musical comedy "Marriage a la Carte." She was a great drawing card, and will undoubtedly appeal to lovers of motion pictures. Five shorter pictures will also be shown. Beginning Monday of next week the regular tradeville season opens, with several specially selected acts.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
Dorothy Donnelly in "The Thief," and Henry B. Walthall in "The Woman Hater" are the central figures of the week at the Academy of Music. As the creator of the title role in "Madame X," Dorothy Donnelly is best remembered. She has a part well suited to her talents in "The Thief," as Academy patrons will immediately realize.

Mr. Walthall is assisted by Filina Mayo and Herbert Washburn. While the production is a comedy-drama, it calls for the portrayal of all deeper emotions, and Mr. Walthall is admirably adapted to the part of "The Woman Hater," which he assumes. Tonight is "amateur night" at the Academy. Ten or 12 candidates for prizes have been booked, and all will be given an opportunity to show what they can do. The amateurs are intensely funny. If you have never seen them perform, don't miss tonight's program.

AT THE KASINO
A good minstrel show is always a great attraction. The managers of the Kasino know this and hence have booked the South Ends to appear at the popular place of amusement tomorrow evening. The South End minstrels are good in every way that the word applies. They have good soloists, directors and choristers, and a good variety of selections for tomorrow evening. While most of the numbers will be entirely new, several of the old favorites that made the troupe famous will be given. A large audience is assured, so if you want a good time, follow the line, to Kasino hill, and get your "fill" of "Goods" that will drive away that chill and cure all your ills.

INDUSTRIAL and STORE NEWS

American Hide & Leather Co.
The business of the American Hide & Leather Co. has experienced a considerable revival after the depression of the June quarter. The current quarter is expected to show a marked increase in sales and profits. The rate of earnings, equal to 12 per cent. on the preferred stock, which was attained during the quarter to March 31, may be equalled this quarter. This improvement is only incidentally the outcome of the revival in export trade. The domestic shoe industry is better and is taking up leather freely at advancing prices. During the fiscal year to June 30 American Hide & Leather reduced its bonded debt by $125,000. With a continuance of the 1914-1915 earnings this record can be equalled during the current fiscal year, bringing the bonded debt down to less than $4,500,000. The financial position is more than $2,000,000 better than a year ago and showing steady upward improvement.

Boiler Makers and Helpers, Local 571
Boiler Makers' and Helpers' union, local 571 held a largely attended and enjoyable smoke talk and entertainment in Trades & Labor hall last evening. A pleasant feature of the evening's festivities came about 9 o'clock when Timothy J. Donahue was called to the center of the platform and presented a beautiful gold watch fob and chain in recognition for his loyalty and service to the organization. Mr. Donahue is the district lodge delegate. Refreshments were served during the evening and an entertainment of unusual quality was given by the following members: Violin selections, R. Woods; piano selections, John Marshall; songs, J. Crowley, J. Cronin, J. Langdon, A. Blauvelt and J. E. Matthews; dances, James Kiere and James Cronin. The committee in charge of the affair were T. Stattery, M. Carroll and James Cunningham.

Merrimack Sold Corduroys
A small sale of Merrimack common at a decline of $3 a share this week is not insignificant. It is only a week or two ago that the Merrimack sold up to 30, and for some little time before that the quotation and sales were nearer 25, so the last price of 27 is actually an advance above the usual price. It is reported that the war in Europe has really done something for the Merrimack, in the fact that a considerable accumulation of corduroys has been liquidated for trench work. That, as we say, is good.

slip, but it sounds reasonable. Lowell is a great place for gossip. A man called on us the other day—an overseer in the Merrimack plant—and said that one thing that held the Merrimack back was that they did not pay big enough wages and salaries. This Merrimack overseer said that a boss weaver at the Merrimack who had 5000 looms under his direction, only got $5 a day. The job is worth $10 at least. The mill could well afford to pay that and get a man who would save every day many times over the difference in salary—American Wool & Cotton Reporter.

SAVINGS BANK INSURANCE

HARRY W. KIMBALL EXPLAINED IT TO EMPLOYEES OF SACO-LOWELL SHOPS—LOCAL AGENCY

A noon meeting of the employees of the Saco-Lowell shops was held yesterday. It was addressed by Harry W. Kimball of Boston.

Mr. Kimball pointed out that savings bank life insurance is a unique movement in this commonwealth. Its purpose is to furnish life insurance in the best form and at the lowest possible cost, especially to the working people.

The dividends which have been declared by Whitman Savings bank, the oldest bank with an insurance department, show what has been accomplished. On monthly premium policies in force seven years the Whitman Savings bank is paying back dividends $1 1-2 per cent of the year's premium; that is, if a man is paying a dollar a month, or twelve dollars a year, the bank will return to him $18.50 in cash premiums, without expense to the insurance departments of the savings banks.

The Saco-Lowell shops do this work without any profits to the company, believing it to be a worthy movement.

SHOWERED WITH GIFTS
Quite a surprise was given Miss L. Bernier, the gown maker, on reaching her rooms Monday evening when a number of her friends, who had already invaded the premises, showered her with gifts in anticipation of her coming marriage. Although completely taken by surprise she was equal to the occasion and responded fittingly. It was a very pleasant occasion and her friends upon leaving wished her a bright and happy future.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 26.—By a vote of 77 to 67 the constitutional convention today reversed its action of yesterday and rejected the literacy test for voters. Forty-four republicans voted with the democrats to kill the amendment, three democrats voting for it.

MURDER OF MINISTER

GEORGE SCHNEIDER HELD IN CONNECTION WITH DEATH OF REV. EDWARD KAYSER

GARY, Ind., Aug. 26.—With the arrest today of George Schneider, a member of the Gary Saxon Verein in connection with the murder of Rev. Edward Kayser, whose body was found near his parsonage in Tolleston, Tuesday night, the police announced that they had abandoned the theory that the pastor may have been slain because of pro-Saxon utterances. Schneider's face was cut and bruised. He is said to have told a relative that he was in a fight Tuesday night. The police declare his story unsatisfactory.

Schneider answers the description of the man we have been looking for," Chief Heitz said. "He has been a member of the minister's congregation but is declared to have been his enemy. Rev. Mr. Kayser, it is said, had incurred the displeasure of members of the Saxon Verein because of his opposition to plans of that organization.

REPORT OF UPRIISING

U. S. Troops Guard Streets of El Paso, Texas, Against Huerta, Carranza and Orozco Plot

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 26.—El Paso awoke today to find its streets bordered by the Rio Grande guarded by United States soldiers as a result of an uprising of Huerta, Carranza and Orozco factionists had been planned for the early hours of the morning. Mexicans were not permitted to cross the international bridge from 11 o'clock last night until early today, and no American was allowed to cross to Huerta. Extra guards were ordered out at Fort Bliss where Gen. Huerta is being held. Companies of infantry were posted at the international bridge, the railroad viaduct and all strategic points.

The rumor of the alleged plot was brought to the department of justice representatives, who notified General John J. Pershing, commanding the Eighth brigade, at Fort Bliss.

A conference of city and county officials, representatives of the department of justice, the federal marshal and Gen. Pershing followed. After the conference Gen. Pershing announced he was prepared to meet any uprising that might start.

During the night soldiers were hurried to their camps by the provost marshal and officers rushed to their posts in automobiles. The police halted and searched Mexicans in the downtown streets. There was no excitement in the city, although an undercurrent of uneasiness was apparent.

Occasional shots were fired by policemen in halting Mexicans found in the lower quarters of the city in order to search them.

ST. ANTHONY'S PARISH

Enjoyable Lawn Fete Opened Last Evening With Large Attendance

The annual garden party under the auspices of the members of St. Anthony's parish had a very successful opening last night, and it is estimated that over 500 people visited the beautiful grounds in the rear of the church in Central street, and all found thorough enjoyment in the excellent program arranged. The affair, which is to continue the remainder of the week, with a grand closing on Saturday evening will undoubtedly attract even larger attendance than was present last night.

The grounds surrounding the church and parish house were resplendent with myriads of incandescents and Japanese lanterns, and multi-colored streamers were suspended from all corners of the grounds and about the various booths making a very pretty picture.

There was a number of enjoyable midway attractions, including aerial wheels, African dodgers, merry-go-rounds, and other interesting contrivances. A dance hall, constructed at considerable expense, took up the major portion of the rear of the grounds and on this a large number of young people enjoyed the pleasures of a well arranged program of dances with music furnished by Miners orchestra. This orchestra will continue to play for dancing during the remainder of the week.

Rev. Henry J. R. da Silva, pastor of the church, was present at the grand opening and lent his assistance in providing plenty of enjoyment for

WANT JITNEY LICENSES

TWO APPLICATIONS FILED—CAN'T FIND $2000 BOND—OTHER MATTERS

After Sept. 1 if you see a man with a little round badge shining on his breast and bearing a large number, don't mistake him for a police officer or a town constable, but salute him as a jitney chauffeur and if you want a ride home, hail him and he will take you to your destination for the small sum of a nickel or half a dime, providing your home is located in his district.

The new motorbus ordinance will go into effect on Sept. 1 and up to this point two applications for licenses had been filed with Clerk Flaherty of the license commission. The two applicants, however, informed the clerk they cannot secure the $2000 bonds as required by the ordinance and what the license commissioners will do about it remains to be seen.

Each chauffeur will be given a "silver badge for the sum of $1, while he is also requested to pay another dollar for his license. The man to whom a license is issued will also be presented an identification card bearing the name of the chauffeur, his age, height, weight, color of hair, color of eyes and race. A similar card will be kept on record at the office of the license commission.

Application blanks can be had at the office of the commission in the Market street building. The blank is supposed to contain the name and address of the applicant, the maker's name and number of vehicle, the model or type of vehicle, the rated horse power, the seating capacity of car as indicated by the manufacturer, the Massachusetts automobile registry number, the name and address of operator, chauffeur's license number, terminal between which such motor bus is to be operated, and specific route or routes over which such motor bus is to be operated.

Those who have filed their application are Jacob Forgays for the Gorman street route to the city line and George McEwan, also for the same route. These two men informed Clerk Flaherty they could not comply with the ordinance inasmuch as they cannot secure the required bond. According to the ordinance a $2000 bond is necessary and this is not produced by these two men they cannot operate after Sept. 1, unless the ordinance is once more amended.

A question that may have to be settled by the city solicitor, who drafted the ordinance is as to whether or not the jitneys running between Lowell and another city will have to be licensed. The ordinance states all jitneys operating in the city must be licensed on or before Sept. 1, but there is no mention of vehicles making the trip from Lowell to Lawrence for instance and Clerk Flaherty stated this morning he does not know what will be done in that case.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE MARKETS
PLUNGED INTO DEMORALIZATION AGAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Foreign exchange markets were plunged into demoralization again today by a wave of foreign bills that broke early in the business day and threatened to carry the rate down to depths hitherto untouched.

The English pound sterling, usually the standard of world finance at 4.85 was selling within the first hour at $1.61 1-4, and one sale, it was reported without confirmation, had been made at $1.54, the lowest figure which sterling has yet reached in this market. France broke to 5.93, five cents under yesterday's close, on the first transaction recorded. Lires dropped two cents to 6.14. German money, for a season not seen on the surface of the market, was worth more than yesterday, Reichmarks selling at $1 1-4.

BARRY FOLLOWS FOSS

TAKES HIS CROWDS AS SOON AS THE FORMER GOVERNOR FINISHES

HYANNIS, Aug. 26.—Ex-Gov. Eugene N. Foss began yesterday his campaign for the republican nomination for governor of Massachusetts.

He stated yesterday morning, from Boston to Provincetown by boat, made a speech in the latter place at 1:30 yesterday and then made a trip which took him to Wellfleet, Orleans, Chatham, Harwich Center, Dennisport, West Dennis, South Yarmouth, Hyannis, Centerville, Osterville, Cotuit and Mashpee. In all of these places except Harwich he had audiences of considerable size, and it is estimated that he addressed yesterday perhaps 1200 or 1300 persons.

Mr. Foss expressed himself as highly pleased with his reception on the Cape. He said at the end of his trip last night that his audiences yesterday were at least twice as large as those which he had here in 1910, when he carried on a successful campaign for congress, or in his more recent campaigns for governor. For this reason, the ex-governor believes that the issue of national prohibition, on which he is making his present fight, is a real one with the voters and that the primaries will greatly surprise his opponents for the republican nomination.

Ex-Gov. Foss said in his speeches yesterday that the republicans could not possibly elect their candidate for governor this fall unless he stood on a plank for national prohibition, and that the speaker's own nomination was the only hope of the party in the coming campaign. The people of Barnstable county are not easily excited, and consequently they were not vociferously enthusiastic over Mr. Foss' speeches yesterday, but they gave careful attention to what he said and applauded liberally. The day was hot and muggy when Mr. Foss started his tour at Provincetown, but the sun gave down and the moon was shining brightly on the country roads and corners long before the ex-governor had made his last speech.

Ex-Gov. Foss was not the only candidate for office who addressed the voters of the Cape yesterday. He was pursued over most of his trip by Ex-Lieut. Gov. Edward B. Barry, who is a candidate for another nomination at the hands of the democratic party. Mrs. Barry and Miss Barry also came down yesterday on the Boston boat to Provincetown. At that place Ex-Representative Morton H. Burdick of Adams met them and these three with their chauffeurs followed Mr. Foss from Provincetown to Hyannis.

The two democratic politicians timed themselves so as to arrive at each place just as the ex-governor was finishing his address. As soon as he ended they took the floor, so to speak, and thus had the benefit of Mr. Foss' advertising and the people who had assembled in response to it. The spectacle was unusual.

It should be said, however, that Messrs Barry and Burdick treated Mr. Foss with consideration. They did not argue vociferously against national prohibition, but said they were willing to leave that question to the republicans.

The democrats insisted that the real issue was the reelection of President Wilson and Governor Walsh, and on the successful administration of these two executives they dwelt at length.

Mrs. Barry took no part in the proceedings, except to listen to her husband and Mr. Burdick.

Mr. Barry was tired out by 7:30 last night when he finished speaking at Hyannis, and so he did not follow Mr. Foss over the last part of his route.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

James P. Ralls May Die of Injuries—Run Over Near Depot

James P. Ralls, about 20 years of age and residing in Franklin court, is confined to St. John's hospital suffering from injuries he received this morning when he was struck by a train near the roundhouse. The attending physicians have little hope for his recovery.

Ralls was seen near the railroad station in Middlesex street at midnight and he inquired of persons in the vicinity at what time he could get a train for Boston. Later he started walking up the tracks in the direction of Boston and at a point near the roundhouse he was struck by the Bar Harbor express. This was shortly after 12 o'clock this morning. The young man's left arm was severed at the shoulder and his head was badly crushed.

STRIKE IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 26.—Nearly 200 members of the Teamsters' union and between 60 and 70 non-union sympathizers went out on a strike for higher wages today, after the state board of conciliation and arbitration had failed to adjust the differences between the contending parties. The controversy is largely over the recognition of the teamsters' union.

Strikebreakers were employed in a few instances but no disorder was reported. Union officials say that members of the building trades unions and other union men will refuse to handle any material delivered by strike breakers.

M'ADOO AT PORTLAND PICK UP 40 SURVIVORS

URGES PREPAREDNESS — SAYS NATION SHOULD CARRY OWN FREIGHT

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 26.—At a gathering of representative democrats of Maine at the Falmouth hotel yesterday afternoon, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo defended the democratic way of dealing with the tariff, held that the tariff revision was along just lines, and spoke of the good results certain to follow the federal reserve act and already apparent.

He said that the democratic idea of a merchant marine is good vessels, well equipped and modern in all respects, manned by well-paid American sailors, living under good conditions, and ready to serve the country in the event of a war at any time.

Mr. McAdoo urged that the Maine democrats be loyal to the president. He said that the nation should be prepared for any emergency both on land and sea. He also declared that it should be prepared to carry its own freight. This was the only reference he made to the president's shipping bill.

Secretary McAdoo was introduced as the personal representative of President Wilson, and was given a great reception.

Sec. F. P. Driscoll of the democratic state committee presided at the gathering. Long before Sec. McAdoo was introduced the adjoining room was thrown open and instantly filled, and many were unable to get within hearing distance.

The audience was made up of well-known democrats, largely members of the various democratic committees.

Charles T. Reed of Biddeford, chairman of the democratic state committee, made "Organization" the keynote of his address. He said that the splendid gathering of representative men showed that the democratic party is aroused and that it is looking forward to a sweeping victory in 1916.

Congressman Daniel J. McGillicuddy of Lewiston was given a very cordial reception.

He said he had come to get inspiration and to bring to the democrats of Cumberland county the greetings of their fellow democrats of Androscoggin county. He reminded his hearers of the great political changes of the last few years.

"This is a democratic city, and a democratic county," he said. "The good old state of Maine is again in the democratic ranks. Gov. Curtis is giving the state a successful administration and the presence here of Sec. McAdoo is a reminder that there is a democratic administration of the affairs of the country."

He paid a tribute to President Wilson, and to his administration, and expressed his confidence in his reelection in 1916.

Senator Charles T. Johnson said he believed that the party organization must be made as effective as possible. He denounced the methods adopted by some of the republican senators, and said "They are sitting in the back part of the cart dragging their feet and trying to resist to prevent progress, but now and then one drops off."

He defended the great measures of the administration of President Wilson, and said that no industry in Maine was in the least degree harmed by the tariff bill, and that even republicans now admit the wisdom of the federal reserve act, largely due to Sec. McAdoo. In closing he spoke of the ability of the high Christian character and the firmness of President Wilson.

BRIDE OF WEEK QUILTS

BEING STEPMOTHER OF NINE CHILDREN TOO MUCH FOR 19-YEAR-OLD GIRL

WAKEFIELD, Aug. 25.—Claiming that her husband of a week ago had deceived her by saying he had only two children when in reality he had nine sons and daughters, Mrs. Rena Willis White, 19-year-old wife of Foster White, a 49-year-old resident of this town, has left the White home at 609 Maine street, Wakefield Junction, returned to her former residence in Everett and says she will sue for a divorce.

Mr. White says he does not know why his wife left home, as she knew he had nine children and had seen most of them when she visited his home before her marriage.

The young bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth C. Willis of 245 Main street, Everett, and until her marriage had been employed in a number of West Everett stores. She was married a week ago last Thursday in Everett to Mr. White, who is a stoker at the municipal light plant here.

"My ideals have been shattered," said Mrs. White last night when asked why she had left her husband. "He deceived me before marriage by saying that he had only two children, but when I went to his home to live I found he had nine sons and daughters, and I was too much for them. I was too much for them, and I was too much for them."

"It was too much for me and I decided to return home. My husband, whom I loved before my marriage, did not treat me just as I supposed he would, and my dream of a happy life was too much for me, not alone the fact that there were eight of us to work for and prepare meals for, but other happenings which were related to me by the neighbors. I intend to sue for divorce or an annulment of the marriage."

BRIDEGROOM ARRESTED

DOBSON IS ACCUSED OF PASSING WORTHLESS CHECKS — POLICE SAY HE MARRIED ON PROCEEDS

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 26.—Wm. Dobson, aged 34, was arrested in Wakefield last night and brought to this city, charged with passing worthless checks. It is alleged that Dobson took funds thus secured and used them in getting married. His bride of a week is suffering from nervous shock occasioned by his arrest.

The police claim that Dobson gave J. P. Boyle of this city a worthless check for $20 drawn on the North Adams bank. Boyle driving Dobson, his bride-to-be and a man and woman, companions, to Canaan, N. Y., where Dobson was married. It is then alleged that the party came back to this city and from here went to Hartford where a worthless check for $17 was passed on a large department store in payment for two suits for his wife.

The police claim other checks for various amounts were passed in Northampton, and that one for $27 was passed on the Hotel Disraeli in Westfield, where Dobson was arrested. The woman is a picture enlarger by trade and of a pleasing appearance.

ARREST GERMAN AS SPY

RESERVIST KOPSCH, HERE TWO YEARS, HAD PHOTOGRAPHS OF U. S. FORTIFICATIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Agents of the secret service of the department of justice yesterday arrested here on a charge of espionage, Gustav Kopsch, a German reservist, who had in his possession many photographs and plans of the fortifications of Fortress Monroe and pictures of the proposed fortifications in Cape Henry, protecting the entrance to Hampton Roads and Chesapeake bay. Kopsch is the second Teuton to be arrested on this charge, an Austrian in many aliases having been taken in similarly two weeks ago in Florida for having pictures of coast defenses in that state.

The specific charge against Kopsch is that he violated article 3 of the act of 1911 which prohibits the making of pictures, or the having possession of pictures that might impair the defenses of the United States. The prescribed penalty is a fine of $1000, imprisonment for one year, or both.

Kopsch is in the district of Columbia jail, in default of $5000 bond fixed by a United States commissioner. Kopsch's alleged activities occurred in late July and early August. He first attracted attention by taking many photographs of Fortress Monroe and Cape Henry, where new batteries will be placed, and by the numerous questions he asked about the plans for new works. He is said to have inquired where the guns would be placed and where the new pier would be built at Cape Henry for marine communications with the other forts in the bay.

For some time Kopsch has been living here at boarding house, 1409 U street. His movements were regarded as mysterious, and attracted the comment of his fellow-boarders, though his employment in some capacity by the Carnegie Institute seemed to explain his presence. The detectives who made the arrest got the impression that Kopsch, in spite of the notice he had attracted, was utterly unaware that he was suspected. His arrest has been pending for some days, and would have taken place yesterday but that time was allowed for the collection of further evidence.

Kopsch is 27 years old, and has been in the country about two years. There were intimations that the administration was using the news at its disposal to press an inquiry into reported activities of German propagandists in this country. Many clues have been supplied to the various departments of the government, and these are being sifted and followed up by the department of justice.

HELD IN $5000 BAIL
WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Facing a charge of violating the federal law for the protection of the national defenses by making pictures of military reservations, Gustav Kopsch, a German, aged 27, an instrument maker in the Carnegie Institution here, was being held today in $5000 bail to await trial in the federal district court at Norfolk, Va.

Kopsch, it is said, did not deny taking the pictures, but testified that he has been permitted to do so by a drunken sentry at Fortress Monroe. He did not explain why he made the photographs.

INVENTS ARMORED CAR

LOWELL YOUNG MAN SUBMITS INVENTION TO WAR DEPT.—FORMIDABLE MACHINE

A Lowell young man by the name of Joseph McCann has invented an armored car that will shoot fore and aft, right and left or straight up, without the least sign of a jar. McCann is 19 years old. He is living with John Grant at 675 Mammoth road. He has always been of an inventive turn of mind and now he allows he has hit on something pretty good for the war department is interested in his model of an armored motor car. McCann's car will carry ten guns, two on the top, for use against airships, three on each side and one on each end. The guns will be mounted on swivels and will shoot any old way. The guns will be of the Maxim rapid-firing type and the number of guns is the highest yet proposed for such a car. The car will have a belt of armor 5-16 of an inch thick on the outside, including the shutters over the guns, through which the sighting can be done. Inside this layer will be a space of four inches in which will be located springs to take up the shock of the contact of light shells with the body of the car. Then will come an armor belt three-eighths of an inch in thickness. The armor will be supported by connections with the roof of the car, and the weight will not come on the sides. The wheels will be protected by the overhanging body and also by an armor layer, then the springs, then the second armor layer. This is the model sent to the War department. The car is made for a twenty foot chassis. The car would call for six or eight men and would carry 500 or 600 pounds of ammunition. The weight would be about four tons, and the engine of 30 horse power would be sufficiently powerful to propel the car. The War department received the model about the first of the present month and the department has suggested that the weight be cut down. Changes in the armor have also been suggested. McCann is a native of Lowell and went for a time to the Lowell high school. Later he attended the H. broken N. J. high school and took lessons in drawing in that city. The young man is working on inventions other than the armored motor car, including a puncture proof tire.

NOW'S THE TIME TO BUY

There is a wrong feeling abroad in this city and one that is injuring everybody. It is that of the man who believes that business is liable to go bad from some cause that exists nowhere except in the imagination. These forebodings are indulged by some people who are earning good wages from week to week and who put their money quietly away in a bank or worse still, in a stocking or a hole in the wall.

Knowing whereof we speak, after looking into the matter thoroughly, we are prepared to state on indisputable authority that not for two years to come will household necessities be as cheap as they are at the present time. Hence if you want a suit of clothes, a dress, an overcoat, a pair of shoes, or anything in the furniture line from a kitchen range to a vacuum sweeper, buy now and you will save money. Just as sure as you put it off to the cold weather or to next year, you will have to pay considerably more money for what you want. This applies to the wide range of textile fabrics and wearing apparel of all kinds as well as to the various lines of furniture. Even building material is lower now than formerly.

The reason of this is, that after recovering from the first effects of the European war and the disturbance caused by the revision of the tariff, the whole country is bending towards greater industrial activity and the enormous crops have encouraged everybody so that for another year at least this nation is secure regardless of what happens in Europe.

Do not for a moment dream that there will be war between the United States and Germany. President Wilson could scarcely be induced by any provocation to join the allies in the warfare against Germany. If we must have a reckoning with Germany let it come after the European conflict is ended.

Every American citizen can rest easy on that score. Germany is evidently desirous of maintaining friendly relations with the United States and we are not anxious to pick a quarrel with her. On the contrary we are doing everything to avoid it and judging from the present outlook there is absolutely no danger of war or even of severing relations with Germany.

That being so, why this gloomy foreboding? Why this fear of spending your money to buy what you need? The merchants of Lowell and the traders in all kinds of household necessities are at present offering bargains such as have not been offered for years. This, then, is the time to buy, the time to avail of the favorable market even if you may have to put your new suit on the hanger in your closet or lay your new shoes away till next season.

It is time to wake up, to cheer up and realize the prosperity at your doors and the vast opportunities and possibilities ahead.

Again we say wake up folks—go out and buy what you want. It is well to remember that a penny saved is a penny gained and if you can save five dollars on a suit of clothes, one dollar on a pair of shoes, or ten dollars on house furnishings, why not do so? Read this editorial carefully, then look around the stores for the things you need and judge for yourself if what we say about prices is not correct. As to prosperity ahead, any business man will tell you that every live wire in the land is at work and ready to keep on at moderate profits on the conviction that the industrial ship has been righted and is now sailing securely to the port of prosperity.

OUR JITNEYS

Occasional complaints have been heard from residents along the Lawrence road and the immediate vicinity against the tendency of jitney drivers to overspeed, and the testimony of some who have used the vehicles indicates that the complaints are just. Only a few days ago there was a serious collision between two of the cars that had kept side by side for some distance in a speed contest, and there have been many minor accidents that could have been prevented if caution were exercised.

This regrettable habit of some jitney drivers must be stopped in the interest of public safety. The public, in patronizing the new mode of conveyance, expresses a preference for convenience and speed, but few people care to travel at a rate that invites disaster. It is expected that the drivers of private autos keep within reason in their rate of speed, and it is expected still more that drivers of jitneys catering to the general public will refrain from extremes.

The wise driver will not wait until the law compels him to observe the rules of common safety, realizing that every accident hurts his business. He will run his cars at a fair rate of speed but will refrain from excessive speed. It is generally the irresponsible speed maniac or the unfair competitor who runs his car recklessly and jeopardizes the lives of the passengers, and it is this type that must be stopped. If the jitneys are not to constitute a new menace to those who use the streets and public highways.

Anybody who has been driven in an auto over the road to Lawrence will really see the special dangers of speed along the route. The road winds in and out along the river bank and there are sudden changes in grade that hold danger for the incautious driver. Jitney drivers who use this road should be swayed by calm judgment and should not endanger their business and the lives of those who ride with them by the silly speed fever. There may be a certain thrill in getting to Lawrence in twenty or twenty-five minutes, but most people prefer to take a little longer in transit, remembering "safety first."

FILTRATION PLANT

Word comes from Commissioner Carmichael that the new municipal filtration plant in Pawtucketville is practically completed. The engines are now being installed and it is the belief of the commissioner that the plant will be in actual operation within two weeks.

This is most gratifying, and those in charge of the work deserve credit for the smoothness and efficiency with which each detail has been attended to. Grave and unforeseen obstacles cropped out in construction, but these were overcome and the completed plant will compare with similar ventures in many of the largest cities in the country.

The need for the filtration plant does not now seem so pressing as when it was first proposed as for some time past the supply at the boulevard wells has been adequate and of good quality. Experts say, however, that a repetition of the old conditions may be expected at any time, and it will be demonstrated before long whether the expensive filtration plant will do all that has been claimed for it. Since the impurities in the Lowell water were mostly visible, Lowell may still enjoy the pure water of the days when the wells were new with the additional advantage of having it clear and sparkling. If so, the new plant will be hailed as a needed and appreciated improvement indeed.

It is also gratifying that for the present at least there is no expectation of a change in the source of our water supply. The time may come when it may be found necessary to take our water directly from the river, but that must remain as the last resort or perhaps paradoxically, the one after the last.

Incidentally, it would appear that the rains of this season filled rivers, wells and springs and prevented the water shortage of other years. This may explain why the water has been so clear, but in summer to come we may hail the filtration plant as a boon and a public benefit.

MUST SUSPEND JUDGMENT

No matter what one may think of the sinking of the Arabic, the message of Count von Bernstorff to the state department, in which he expresses the regret of the imperial government at the loss of American lives and asked America to suspend judgment until all facts are known comes as a relief. The situation has indeed been strained and in some ways more ominous than after the sinking of the Lusitania, because our government has virtually threatened action, and the country waited for something besides the sending of another note. Nevertheless, it is the earnest hope of the American people that we can continue to keep out of the war, and anything that would ensure our continuing in honorable neutrality is welcome.

Germany contends that we have as yet received but one side of the Arabic story, and nothing ought to be done until the official German report is received. Sometimes it is several days before submarines return to their base, and the German government reported that it had not yet heard from the commander who sent the Arabic to the bottom. Yet the German government declared that if Americans had lost their lives it was contrary to German intentions, and there is no good reason to doubt it. The illegality of the act might not deter Germany from doing it at this time, but there are practical considerations which would make it dangerous for Germany, without justification.

Time will show whether the excuse of Germany is well based or merely a subterfuge, and this country will lose nothing by waiting. Washington expresses satisfaction at the friendly tone of the German note, and it now looks as though nothing will be done until we have the German explanation of the Arabic incident. The strict British censorship makes it all the more imperative that we wait patiently and suspend judgment until we get the promised German account. Better

The Illinois legislature has recently passed a law that seems simple and unimportant on first reading but that looms up as very significant and far-reaching when analyzed. This law stipulates that persons resident in another state and applying for license to marry in Illinois must be eligible for license and marriage in the state where they hold legal residence. This comprehensive law aims at preventing the nullification of the laws of one state by laxity in the laws of another. It goes a good way towards the enactment of the uniform divorce laws for which so many are working.

There is no disposition in the new law to go contrary to state rights, for it recognizes the right of any state to make its own laws; it merely sees to it that such laws are respected. If the courts of New York grant a divorce to a wife and forbid the husband to wed again, he cannot go to Illinois and marry owing to this new law. He can, however, go to other states and defy the laws of New York, and it is a matter of national approach that some states seem to invite such defiance of law and morality. Thus, bands of wives who have thrown off the marriage tie have made it a popular society sport to cross the state line and take another chance at matrimony.

The lead of Illinois should be followed by all states, especially since it establishes no new principle but aims at preventing the flouting of state laws. There would still be something to be done, but such a law, if made universal, would prevent a great deal of the abuse that causes America to blush before the world in this one particular.

OUR CONSULAR SERVICE

The great war has demonstrated among other things that the American consular service can meet grave international emergencies and so conduct itself as to merit the fullest confidence of our own people and the respect of all others. Before the war, criticism of this branch of the government was frequent; now there is nothing but praise. There is good cause for this change of attitude, and anybody who would attack our consular service today would be hard set to find damaging facts on which to base charges. In England, France, Germany, Russia, and elsewhere, American consuls have acted with tact and dignity, and they have attended to American interests like masters of diplomacy. Our representatives abroad have faced many delicate situations and in many instances their zeal, prudence and timely activity have smoothed over many a rough spot in international dealings. Where there are over six hundred consuls, there may be an occasional misfit, but it has been demonstrated beyond any reasonable doubt that the American consular service is able, efficient and splendidly patriotic.

of rulers in which the respective peoples are tragic puppets. The peoples have no grievances against each other, except in some instances where attitudes of mind have been fostered by the governments. Fritz and Hans would much rather be on their farms by the Rhine than shooting at Jacques and Pierre who in turn would fain be back in their Parisian shops, and Nikolaus wonders why he should hate the Turk who smokes cigarettes and dreams by the Bosphorus. When governments represent the people instead of driving them in dumb drives, there will be no more secret diplomacy, hidden agreements and outworn cant about the wars of the peoples. The peoples are ready to fight when they are called but they do not make wars. That is the game of the rulers, and when it is all over, what do the people gain?

THE MOSQUITOES

The insect plague of Egypt does not sound mythological any longer, for we have had the plague of mosquitoes, and what a plague it was! Through doors and windows and screens they swarmed, armed with their instruments of torture, making the evening unpleasant and the night intolerable. Z-z-z-z, zing; hiss—escaped! and then the lighted match, the fruitless search, the grumbling return to an uneasy bed. Many a maid has had her beauty marred while she slept, and many a man has had his temper so ruffled that it will take a week to get out the stinks and to get in the sleep he has lost. The harvest has not dared to sit out of doors in the evening, thought armed with jess stick and cigar, and even the most prudent carries around unusual shin and wrist decorations.

Now comes a warning of the U. S. health authorities that the mosquito of 1915 has malaria germs and other germs to give away free. We don't doubt it. All those bumps did not come from injections of distilled water. It behooves everybody, therefore, to be careful. Prevention is the thing—the cleaning out of cesspools, the draining of pools, the hermetical sealing of avenues by which the unloved visitors might enter. If they are in, make the best of it and if you do not mind a little unpleasantness in the remedy, try a massage before retiring with any one of six evil smelling oils. Some who have tried this can testify to its powerful smell and its general efficacy.

Safety First

A long-haired chap who walked into the general store at Avenida, asked, "Do you sell stale eggs?" "No," said the grocer, with a smile, "but I've got some."

"Well, give me all you've got," said the stranger.

The grocer as he handed up the eggs laughed and said, "I guess you're going to see 'Hamlet' tonight at the opera house."

"No," said the stranger grimly, "I'm going to play 'Hamlet' tonight at the opera house."

Make Soap From Sugar

The discovery is announced of a method of manufacture of soap from sugar, of which Germany has plenty. Instead of from oil, which is scarce. In the past it has been possible to use sugar only in soaps that had little value. By the new method, it is claimed, the soap produced is not only fine and delicate, but it acts as eff-ciently in salt water as in fresh—in fact that may make the soap valuable for the navy.

Articles that formerly had to be sent to chemical laundries can now be washed with the new kind of soap. The finest kinds of silk it is alleged, not only are not harmed by it, but their colors are brought out brilliantly as if new. In addition, the sugar-soap seems to be responsible for a minimum of the wear and tear occasioned by old-fashioned cleansing soaps.

Things Worth Knowing

Delicate cotton goods or lace may be stiffened by wringing them out in milk instead of water.

To remove white marks from a polished table caused by hot dishes, rub with paraffin on a flannel cloth, afterward polish with alcohol.

To obtain a beautiful luster on cut-glass wash it in two quarts of hot water to which one tablespoonful of turpentine has been added.

If a piece of woolen cloth is placed on the floor and glass has been broken the tiny particles will stick to it and thus be removed. It is almost impossible to get them up with a broom.

To remove stains from linen, rub them on either side with yellow soap and then apply starch made into a paste with cold water. Rub this paste well into the stain, hang in the sun for several hours, then wash.

It should be a matter of common knowledge, since flour is always with in convenient reach, that wheaten flour is the best extinguisher to throw over a fire caused by the spilling and lighting of kerosene.

Stamp Collectors Busy

The war is bringing grief to the mills of the philatelists, or at least that branch of the wide and patiently acquired family of the philatelists composed of stamp collectors. Common canceled postage stamps of the governments which may be blotted out before peace returns are in active demand and the stamps bearing the heads of kings or emperors or the arms of ruling houses that may be put out of office or out of power by the conflict are in great request, an exchange points out. Governments that may undergo a great change may, when peace returns, issue new stamps which will lend interest and value to the issues of the present. Belgian stamps in use up to the outbreak of the war have been pretty thoroughly collected and the stamps that carry mail out of that war-ridden land today are German stamps with a surcharge on their face which shows that they have taken the place of the former Belgian post. In German Samoa, the postage stamps in New Zealand with "Samoa" printed across their face are in use, and it is likely that in the German islands of the Pacific occupied by the Japanese, the postage stamps of Nippon appropriately surcharged are being used. In what was once German New Guinea, English stamps are surcharged in a way to show the change of sovereignty in that land.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

THE STRANGE PET.

Once upon a time Mary's father told her he had something to show her out in the barn. So she took hold of his hand and they went to the barn and there, in the corner, in a nice clean pen were fourteen tiny pigs with pink skin and soft white hair. Mary took one up and the mother pig grunted as much as to say: "Did you ever see such beautiful children?"

The next morning when Mary went out to see the pigs, one very tiny one was lying in the corner and looked very ill. Mary's father told her it had not eaten anything and that the others wouldn't let come near the pad of milk. "Oh, Father, can't I have that little one for mine. I will take care of it and make it eat," cried Mary. Her father said that she could, so she took it in her arms to the house and made a bed for it in a basket lined with soft cotton. Then she warned some milk, put it in a saucer and tried to make her new pet eat, but it wouldn't touch it or any of the other nice things that Mary fixed for it. At last Mary thought of her doll's nursing bottle and ran and filled it with the milk. She put it in the pig's mouth and it began to drink and didn't stop until the milk was all gone.

After that it always had its drink in the bottle, and when it began to grow, it would walk around the room with the bottle of milk in its mouth, and would hold on with all its might if anyone tried to get it away. Mary named the pig Peg and when she called it would run towards her and jump up in her lap to be petted.

Mary gave it a bath very often and Peg enjoyed that very much, especially when Mary combed and scratched its back. Then she would tie a blue ribbon around its neck and Peg would go to sleep in her basket.

I think it was a strange pet, don't you?

FRANK FILMS ARE BARRED

PROVED BY NATIONAL CENSORS

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Films of the Leo M. Frank case which were being shown in an East Boston theatre were suppressed after the theatre management received word from the police of station 7 to quit exhibiting the pictures.

The police acted on order of Municipal Censor Casey. The films had been shown Monday to the theatre patrons, but Mr. Casey got wind of the matter in time to prevent Tuesday's exhibition.

Mr. Casey acted because the films had not received the approval of the national board of censors, which has its headquarters in New York.

A standing order from the mayor's office to the moving picture houses states that no film of any nature shall be exhibited unless it has been approved by the national board of censors. Mr. Casey was cognizant that the national board had refused to O. K. films on the Frank case.

THE SPELLBINDER

"How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child!"

Did you read what appeared in the political column of the Courier-Citizen Wednesday, as follows:

"Speaking of local politics for the moment, Mayor Murphy has served one term of two years, and would naturally be up for nomination. As a matter of fact he is quite indifferent to it. Two years ago he made the statement: 'If a mayor is honest and a lawyer, two years is about as long as he can afford to neglect his business.'"

"Strong efforts are being made, however, to induce the mayor to become a candidate. The movement does not appear to be directed against any other candidates who may have aspirations for the honor, but is an expression of the belief that he has been an efficient non-partisan mayor, and would continue to be one if re-elected."

What the writer means to convey, but doesn't care to say in good plain language, is:

"You're a nice man, Dennis, and we like you, but Perry Thompson is going to be a candidate, so you had better not run again."

And observe the neat manner in which the Courier-Citizen is trying to smoke him out on that second-term proposition, to wit: "Two years ago he made the statement: 'If a mayor is honest and a lawyer, two years is about as long as he can afford to neglect his business.'"

How can the mayor go back on such a statement if he made it? If the Spellbinder had attributed such a statement to His Honor, the latter's friends would howl about his disregard for the truth, etc., but the Spellbinder didn't make it. I have also supposed the statement to be made by the mayor and repeated on the stump was that one term was enough for any man and that he would not seek a second term. But there's a chance to get around such a statement by means of a petition asking His Honor to be a candidate again despite his voluntary renunciation of the office.

Citizen, however, takes no chances, and quotes His Honor as having made a statement that no amount of coaxing could make him repudiate with honor; by so doing he would be affecting his own reputation. The Courier-Citizen says His Honor is quite indifferent to a re-nomination. He has certainly shown his indifference, by raising the health department pay and the salaries of about everybody under him, by giving the police whom he roundly criticised, on the stump, one day off in 1916; by coming out strongly against the liquor law, but off in five for the firemen, after previously having sent the city solicitor to the legislature to oppose the measure; by shifting on the Seventh avenue hospital site after stating that the hospital must go there; by his anxiety relative to the Westford street extension; by his anxiety to locate the property-owners in Kirk and Anne streets; by holding the municipal band concerts in everybody's back yard instead of on the commons—oh, yes he is indifferent—as indifferent as is the Locke & Canals company over its rights in the Merrimack river. But lastly and best of all, says the Courier-Citizen: "but the movement is an expression of the belief that he has been an efficient, non-partisan mayor, and would continue to be one if elected."

And the only time that the mayor has had an opportunity to demonstrate his non-partisanship during his entire term was when he had the appointment of five cemetery commissioners—and he appointed five good, straight-faced republicans, which is the Courier-Citizen's idea of non-partisanship, as frequently evidenced, but seldom as freely acknowledged, as in this case.

Time and Campaigns Make Changes

Political campaigns like time itself make many changes. When this administration was trying to get in, the police were roundly roasted and the firemen likewise. When the administration got into power it did away with a time-honored custom of allowing policemen and firemen their pay while off for a few days on account of illness, so that now when a policeman or a fireman is off a day on account of illness he is "docked" that day's pay. Then the administration sent the city solicitor to Boston to oppose the one-day-off-in-fare for the firemen, the proposition then before the legislature.

But—the time came when the thoughts of some of the members of the administration turned upon the desirability of a second term and it was necessary to do something to "square" the policemen and the firemen for the loss of their pay while ill. The mayor placed the policemen with one day off in 15 while at a banquet of the firemen held recently, His Honor and Col. Carmichael declared themselves emphatically in favor of the one-day-off-in-five proposition for the firemen, thereby going back on the city solicitor who had faithfully done their bidding. Still it doesn't pay for policemen or firemen to get sick any more.

Our Unified Fire Department

In the equity court in Boston, way back in April, when the city tried by legal means to prevent Mr. Simpson from putting a big sign over the Owl theatre building on the ground that it was a fire-hazard, the judge sitting on the case, in the presence of Commissioners Duncan and Putnam and probably Carmichael, City Solicitor Hennessy, Building Inspector Connor and others said: "Mr. Saunders, you had better go back and fix up that Lowell fire department."

At that time the municipal council already had voted $18,000 for new fire apparatus, and all the government had to do was to go ahead on the court's advice and fix up the department. It is now almost September and the $18,000 still lies idle, with the fire department in a most deplorable condition, while the administration members are looking for votes by means of a sawdust bridge, Dummer street extension and other matters of less vital importance.

As is the policy of the members of the administration when any of the departments is criticised in charge, the blame with the commissioner in place, the responsibility in this case is laid at the door of Col. Carmichael, when as a matter of fact each commissioner is equally responsible for the entire council is ordered by the charter to outline the policies of the individual departments and have supervision over them.

Recently the residents of the Highlands protested emphatically against the removal of the horses from the chemical in Westford street, as a result of which it has been announced in the papers, Col. Carmichael has replaced the horses, and the public is given the inference that adequate fire protection for the Highlands has been restored.

But has it been restored? Just take a look at the two superannuated candidates for the riding company that have been dignified with the name of horse, and placed in that Westford street fire house.

Now that the fire department has placed what it is pleased to call horses in the Westford street house, the buildings department, as an act of charity, should place a couple of its wooden carpenter's horses in the stalls to serve as props for the horses of the fire department.

Upon looking at those animals in the Westford street house, one's first inclination is to remove his hat out of veneration for old age. Then if he is fortunate enough to own an auto his next move is to get his tire pump and blow them up. It is said that the firemen for innocent diversion are playing a game of "odd or even" on the number of ribs exposed to view by each animal.

But the department itself, it is said, realizing the proximity to the cremator of the two horses, has come to the rescue and instructions have been given that the Westford street chemical is not to respond to any alarms for fires in the Highlands, unless orders are received from headquarters. If it is true that such are the orders then that chemical will be as useless as the engine in Palmer street which stands on the floor of the fire house with harnesses set, but no horses, and minus a cylinder that was blown out in the Livingston fire, but never repaired.

A chemical engine is a sort of first aid to a fire affair, and if it becomes necessary to wait for the chief or assistant to get to the Highlands from a remote part of the city and determine whether the chemical should be summoned or not, then there might as well be no chemical in the Westford street house. Fires, like time and tide wait for no man, not even a fire chief, and the time to have a chemical on the job is as soon as speed can get it there after the discovery of the blaze.

At the recent green-house fire in the upper Highlands no chemical responded. I am informed, and when the hose was finally set and put in operation there wasn't enough water pressure to carry it to the second story. In some of the houses in the upper Highlands the householders find the water flowing reluctantly into their bath tubs on account of the low pressure.

The one thing needed and demanded by the taxpayers of the Highlands, who insist on their rights, even as the good people of Belvidere and Pawtucketville do when threatened with contagious disease hospitals, is a chemical engine that can get to a fire with speed and which upon getting there is equipped so as to perform its functions. The Branch street fire company will not do, for it covers the territory below the depot, and when it is responding to an alarm in that district, the entire upper part of the city is without fire protection.

Squire Donahue's Remarks

One by one our friends are knocking. One by one their hammers fall. Some are writing, some are talking. Where will we be at this fall?

In police court, Tuesday, Lawyer Donahue defending a couple of non-voting residents, who were charged with selling soap on the Sabbath made the following remarks: "I am glad as a citizen of Lowell to know that the police are detecting crimes on Sunday. This is a very important case, but some day the police may get a real big Sunday case. They have been bringing in a few snap-shooters, poor widows who were selling a drop of liquor to support four or five or six dependent children and now they are working on five-cent soap cases. Some day, I repeat, the local constabulary will round up a real case. There are hundreds of cases of violation of the law on Sunday that are going unnoticed, and some day the Lowell police may find out about them."

Lawyer Donahue has always been friendly-disposed toward this administration and his remarks were not made for political effect, or through unfriendliness, but as statements of fact, and it would appear that he is quite right in his assertions. A liquor dealer is caught by the liquor inspectors violating the law and gets away with it; of course all liquor dealers don't, in fact some are rigidly watched; a man, it is said, is detected selling from the hip, not many miles from the Carriage shop, and he gets away with it. Recently a club room was invaded and a bunch of boys playing a game of cards for money, there was probably five dollars in the entire crowd, were arrested, while the administration received big headlines from certain sources for rounding up the "gamblers." Now they're after the Sunday sellers and are specialising among those who don't vote. But you don't hear any of the "big league stuff" from the police these days; and you won't, with a second term in prospect.

But that case in Market street last Sunday, in which Lawyer Donahue was concerned, is interesting, for it shows what line of policy he has accomplished if the members of the department turned their extraordinary efforts in other directions. The case was all carefully planned out in advance. Officer O'Sullivan, a supernumerary, was selected to do the "come-on" job, while Messenger Pindar, the department's exclusive finger-print expert, was the Sherlock Holmes who was to do the real scientific detective work.

Officer O'Sullivan put on a disguise before leaving the police station. He testified in response to Lawyer Donahue's question as to how he dressed: "Like you are." Therefore he must have been disguised like a live one. Before leaving the police station also, he probably pressed his palm upon a sheet of paper smeared with carbon, which left the impression of his finger-prints. Completing his disguise by lighting a good cigar, Officer O'Sullivan accompanied by Messenger Pindar strolled along Market street, until he reached the store upon which they were to descend.

O'Sullivan entered, while Pindar remained outside.

Costopoulos, who was in the store greeted O'Sullivan with a smile that was child-like and bland and remarked: "Chickynas?" which is the Market street for "How do you do?" O'Sullivan smilingly came back with: "Thouga-ga-maugh," which in days gone by was the Market street for "Hi, well!"

"Gettin' much?" inquired Costopoulos.

"If I get you, I may get commended by the mayor," facetiously replied O'Sullivan, which drew a laugh from the unsuspecting Costopoulos.

"Do you keep soap?" inquired O'Sullivan, when we have to, but generally we sell it," said Costopoulos, furnishing his own laugh, at this little rally.

"Let me have five cents worth of soap," said O'Sullivan reaching for his wrist- purse.

"Hard or soft?" inquired Costopoulos. And right there the case hinged. Had O'Sullivan called for soft soap it would have been all off; there'd been no corroborative evidence and Messenger Pindar's scientific services would have been in vain.

But O'Sullivan had to pass a civil service examination in order to get on the force and hence was nobody's fool, and he didn't fall for anybody's soft soap. He purchased a cake of hard soap and took it in his hand. That also was vitally important. Had he ordered it sent to the station by express or by parcel post again the case would have blown up. He took it in his hand and as he gently pressed his ill-white fingers upon its impressionable surface the impression of his fingers was left on the soap.

That's where Pindar came in. He had been on the outside looking in. As it were, and up to that time could testify only to having seen O'Sullivan enter the store, and had Costopoulos denied the sale it would have been man against man. But once Pindar's scientific eye rested upon the tell-tale prints upon the soap he knew that they were O'Sullivan's prints and that O'Sullivan had purchased the soap and science knows that no two men but finger-prints alike; hence none but O'Sullivan could have been the purchaser. Thus the case was clinched and even Dan Donahue, clever lawyer though he may be, couldn't get away from that incontrovertible evidence.

The above account may not be quite exact, but the purchase and the subsequent case were conducted very much as here described.

The bride's first and never-ending problem is "What to eat."

For breakfast, lunch, or supper, what could one have more delicious than

New Post Toasties

These new flakes are made of choice Indian Corn, cooked and toasted by a new method that brings out a wonderful new flavour.

In this new process, intense heat expands the interior moisture producing little pearl-like "puffs," a distinguishing characteristic of the pert, was the Sherlock Holmes who was to do the real scientific detective work.

Officer O'Sullivan put on a disguise before leaving the police station. He testified in response to Lawyer Donahue's question as to how he dressed: "Like you are." Therefore he must have been disguised like a live one. Before leaving the police station also, he probably pressed his palm upon a sheet of paper smeared with carbon, which left the impression of his finger-prints. Completing his disguise by lighting a good cigar, Officer O'Sullivan accompanied by Messenger Pindar strolled along Market street, until he reached the store upon which they were to descend.

O'Sullivan entered, while Pindar remained outside.

Costopoulos, who was in the store greeted O'Sullivan with a smile that was child-like and bland and remarked: "Chickynas?" which is the Market street for "How do you do?" O'Sullivan smilingly came back with: "Thouga-ga-maugh," which in days gone by was the Market street for "Hi, well!"

"Gettin' much?" inquired Costopoulos.

"If I get you, I may get commended by the mayor," facetiously replied O'Sullivan, which drew a laugh from the unsuspecting Costopoulos.

"Do you keep soap?" inquired O'Sullivan, when we have to, but generally we sell it," said Costopoulos, furnishing his own laugh, at this little rally.

"Let me have five cents worth of soap," said O'Sullivan reaching for his wrist- purse.

"Hard or soft?" inquired Costopoulos. And right there the case hinged. Had O'Sullivan called for soft soap it would have been all off; there'd been no corroborative evidence and Messenger Pindar's scientific services would have been in vain.

But O'Sullivan had to pass a civil service examination in order to get on the force and hence was nobody's fool, and he didn't fall for anybody's soft soap. He purchased a cake of hard soap and took it in his hand. That also was vitally important. Had he ordered it sent to the station by express or by parcel post again the case would have blown up. He took it in his hand and as he gently pressed his ill-white fingers upon its impressionable surface the impression of his fingers was left on the soap.

That's where Pindar came in. He had been on the outside looking in. As it were, and up to that time could testify only to having seen O'Sullivan enter the store, and had Costopoulos denied the sale it would have been man against man. But once Pindar's scientific eye rested upon the tell-tale prints upon the soap he knew that they were O'Sullivan's prints and that O'Sullivan had purchased the soap and science knows that no two men but finger-prints alike; hence none but O'Sullivan could have been the purchaser. Thus the case was clinched and even Dan Donahue, clever lawyer though he may be, couldn't get away from that incontrovertible evidence.

sequent case were conducted very much as here described.

Mr. Wilson's Candidacy

The republican contest for county treasurer might be called a newspaper fight for County Treasurer Joseph O. Hayden is the owner of the Somerville Journal, while his opponent Harold D. Wilson is the owner of the Journal's rival paper, the Somerville News. Both papers are weekly, but by no means weak, and hence the Somerville people undoubtedly will get plenty of splay campaign reading between now and September 21. Mr. Wilson claims to represent the younger element of the republican party, the element that is going to attract the backsliding progressives back into the fold. He claims that 30 years ago Joseph O. Hayden opposed the man who then held the office of county treasurer on the ground that he had already held it 16 years which was long enough for any man. The people at that time must have thought so too, for they elected Mr. Hayden and he has continued to hold the job almost twice 16 years, having rounded 30 years. Now Mr. Wilson is using Mr. Hayden's argument of three decades ago only he has extended the time limit as it were, and he claims that 30 years is surely long enough for any one man to hold a county job. One cannot help thinking how insignificant were Mayor Murphy's remarks that one term of 2 years was enough for any man, when in county affairs they give a man 30 years before rating the "hole enough" cry on him. Mr. Wilson came to town Tuesday evening accompanied by a few of the faithful in a well placed auto. In the party also was Mr. Witham, a Boston newspaperman, who is serving in the wilderness for himself and God for us all. Personally I have no interest in their quarrels for the time has about arrived when two good democrats will relieve them of any further fighting on election day, but two candidates tying up together is bad business except in the 17th representative district, and even there the knot, in all probability, will be untied within a month or more.

Warred About Democrats

Republicans, not only locally, but throughout the state, are deeply concerned over the prospective attitude of democrats in the coming republican primaries, and the republican papers are working strenuously to discourage the demmies from carrying out their avowed intention. For instance the Cambridge Gilderon, a paper published by Harold David Wilson, who is opposing County Treasurer Hayden for that position, in the republican primaries, has the following to say on the subject: "Some politicians are figuring on a big democratic vote in the primary in favor of McCall. The argument is that there is no contest to speak of on the democratic side and members of that party will therefore be free to do some marking in the other fellow's column if so inclined. Most of them so disposed are anxiously awaiting to Cushing for a reason well understood, and they may take that method to down him in his own political ambition. But they cannot tell which would be the stronger before the people and the more likely to defeat Walsh, and this may give them pause as they hold the little pencil over the republican column on the 21st of September. Things may clarify before then, however, and shifting democrats may know better what to do. They have no right to monkey with the other party's nominations except what the new law foolishly gives them."

A Strange Mistake

Like Tennyson's little brook, a well known hotel bartender of that name is still running freely, even though temporarily deprived of his liberty by a liquor inspector Tuesday morning. It seems that on Saturday evening a bold, bad man entered Droney's saloon on Broadway with a shotgun on his shoulder and half-shot from the shoulder down, and began talking war and other things. Someone in the party intimated that even though he might be the gun was not loaded. To convince his doubting friend that the gun would go off the fellow aimed it at a lamp and fired. The lamp went out, while the drunk with the gun also went out immediately after. By the time the story got to the newspapers it was highly colored, but that has nothing to do with these few lines. The officers were sent out to get the bad man and on Tuesday morning the bartender in question was leaving Burns' tonorial emporium in Central street, a liquor inspector touched him on the shoulder and informed him that he was wanted at the police station. He went over smilingly, for he was strong in the knowledge of the fact that at the hotel where he is employed they have the utmost respect for the law and don't sell pints and half pints. And he knew that a liquor officer would be taking him in for no other reason than for violation of the liquor law. Upon arriving at the police station his prior received a severe jolt when he learned that he had been mistaken for the bad man, who wasn't to be mentioned in the same breath with him, for good looks, and he went his way wondering.

Some people think the joke is on the bartender, but what about the efficient liquor inspector who doesn't know a hotel bartender when he meets him?

Its Final Location

After all the wrangling over the location for a contagious disease hospital has been exhausted, we may yet see the institution located where it was originally planned, adjacent to the Chelmsford street hospital. It is said that one and probably most of the commissioners are sorry that they ever monkeyed with the Pillsbury site.

RUBE MARQUARD TRADED IN LEAGUE TEN YEARS

FAMOUS NEW YORK PITCHER
SENT TO TORONTO—WANTS
HIS RELEASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Richard (Rube) Marquard, left-handed pitcher, was sold yesterday by the New York Nationals to the Toronto club of the International league. Under the terms of the transaction the Giants are to get Pitcher Herbert from the Canadian team. It is understood that all major league clubs waived claims to Marquard because of their unwillingness to pay the high salary which his contract calls for. This salary will undoubtedly be paid off by the two clubs. Marquard declared his unwillingness to join the Toronto club and wants his unconditional release.

Marquard came to New York in 1908, when $11,000 was paid to the Indianapolis club for him. He did not play much until 1911, when he began to develop, and the next year made a record by pitching 19 straight victories. Last season he defeated Pittsburgh in 21 innings, the longest game ever played in the National league.

The New Yorks also announced the purchase of Catcher Robert Schang from the Pittsburgh Nationals for $10,000. He is a brother of Walter Schang, catcher of the Philadelphia Americans.

CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNAMENT
NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Officials of the United States Lawn Tennis association announced today that the match between Frederick B. Alexander, former national doubles champion and Davis cup player, and Northland W. Davis of Boston, probably will be given the place of honor on the grand stand court at the opening of the national championship tournament at Forest Hills next Monday. The match between Harold A. Throckmorton, the boy star, and Edward H. Whitely, the former Harvard captain, has been selected as the next most important event of the opening day.

JAMES TO JOIN BRAVES
BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Everything appears to be breaking right for the Braves just at present, the latest big and gratifying thing to cheer the heart of manager Stallings being that Big Bill James is in the best of shape again and started on his way east from California to join the club.

A telegram reached Stallings from Oroville, Cal., yesterday, conveying this information. It stated that the arm that has bothered James all season has responded to treatment, and that he will be ready to help out in the box very shortly. It is expected that James will reach Boston by next Monday.

HARRIS WINS STATE TITLE
BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Aug. 26.—Fred H. Harris of Brattleboro, wrestled the state tennis championship from J. G. Nelson of Concord, N. H., yesterday by defeating him in the final round, 6-3, 5-4, 6-2. Harris also won permanent possession of the trophy on which he had two legs.

Harris and Nelson, who are the present holders of the state doubles championship, defeated C. H. Collesser of Gardner, Mass., and C. T. Porter of Worcester, Mass., in the semi-final round of the doubles. Tomorrow the victors will meet C. J. Dexter of Philadelphia and A. N. Wilder of New Haven, Conn., in the finals.

MEADOW CUP SINGLES
SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The outstanding match today as the tennis players met in the fifth round for the Meadow cup singles cup was that between George M. Church, the Princeton champion, and William M. Johnston of California.

In the other matches T. R. Pell meets Leonard Beekman and William M. Washburn meets G. C. Caner.

FAMOUS GOLFERS COMPETE
DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 26.—More than a dozen of the greatest amateur golfers in America, playing on teams representing the east and west, expected today to give the Detroit Country club course a thorough try-out in preparation for the national amateur golf tournament which begins here Saturday. The match was to go 18 holes.

The eastern teams of ten men were captained by W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh. Two of his mates were Francis Oimeiri, national amateur champion, and Jerome E. Travers, national open champion. D. E. Sawyer of Wheaton, Ill., led the western team. The presence of Charles Evans, Jr., of Chicago, western amateur champion, on Sawyer's team added considerable interest to the event. Travers and Oimeiri are favorites for championship honors, while Evans, who also has a large following, has been referred to as the hope of the west.

Travers yesterday made the course in 75. The record is 72.

TY COBB TODAY CELEBRATES 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS DEBUT AS MAJOR LEAGUER

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 26.—Ty Cobb, often referred to as the greatest baseball player in the world, today celebrated the tenth anniversary of his debut as a major league player. No special ceremony was planned by Detroit fans to mark the occasion, but it was expected that Cobb would receive an unusual demonstration and probably something more substantial from his friends this afternoon when he stepped to the plate in the last game of the important series with Boston.

Cobb's path of fame, which he blazed for himself, has probably never been equaled in the history of baseball. For eight successive seasons he has been champion batsman of the American league. His average for the present season is about .380. No batter has ever made such a record.

On Aug. 25, 1905, a tall, nervous appearing boy of 19 years from the Augusta (Ga.) club, in a class C league, donned a Detroit uniform and was sent to center field by Manager Bill Armour to replace Dick Cooley. The player was Cobb. Cooley never got his job back. Cobb became a regular that afternoon and has never felt the sting of being benched.

Only once in thirteen years has the mighty Ty Cobb been replaced by a pinch hitter. When Cobb was a youngster, "Doc" White, then of the Chicago club, was his nemesis. Catcher Freddie Payne was sent to bat for Cobb against White on the single occasion. In 1905 his first full season, Cobb hit .320. That has since been his low mark.

Cobb has always played right of center field. Only on one day during his Detroit career did he perform elsewhere. He acted as volunteer second baseman, and Cobb as well as Manager Jennings admitted after the game that the infield did not lose anything when the Georgian's first manager made an outfielder of him.

NIGHT RIDERS JAILED

NINE OTHERS CHARGED WITH SIMILAR OFFENCES ON TRIAL IN KENTUCKY

HARTFORD, Ky., Aug. 26.—The long struggle of the authorities with lawlessness in this portion of western Kentucky culminated in the Ohio county circuit court here yesterday when more than three score persons were placed on trial for alleged participation in night riding outrages. When court adjourned for the day, two men had pleaded guilty, nine others were on trial and 52 were awaiting a hearing.

The guilty plea of the first two cases called, those of Jerry Clark and Ernest Webster, caused surprise. It had been believed all of the defendants would resist conviction. Clark and Webster were sentenced to three years each in the penitentiary for flogging a man and a woman. The nine men on trial were indicted with them. Charges against the remainder allege mistreatment of various persons and the murder of a negro.

Scores of persons in Ohio and contiguous counties have been flogged at night and their homes riddled with bullets within the last 10 months by bands of mounted men. Whites and negroes alike have suffered.

The authorities say reasons advanced to the victims indicated the night riders were endeavoring to regulate the conduct of communities through intimidation, displace negro workers with white and fix prices which merchants should charge for merchandise.

BEAT WIFE AND CHILD

CHARLESTOWN MAN SET FIRE TO HOUSE AND THEN CUT HIS OWN THROAT

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Lawrence Keenan of Main street, Charlestown, who beat his wife and daughter over the head with a stick of wood, set fire to the house and then cut his own throat yesterday, was still delirious at the Relief hospital last night, and in a weakened condition from loss of blood.

His wife, Della, showed considerable improvement, with little doubt as to her recovery, and their daughter Mary, who suffered less from Keenan's attack, was allowed to go home.

But slight damage resulted from the fire caused by a lighted lamp which Keenan threw into the bed occupied by the two women.

COL. ROOSEVELT SPEAKER

RAPS NATION FOR NOT BEING PREPARED IN ADDRESS AT PLATTSBURG

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Theodore Roosevelt in an address last night at the military instruction camp here, declared that for 13 months the United States had "played an ignominious part among the nations," in that it had "tamely submitted to seeing the weak, whom we had covenanted to protect, wronged," and had seen our own men, women and children murdered on the high seas without action on our part.

Roosevelt said: "Camps are best possible antidotes to hyphenated Americanism. Professional pacifists, politicians and college sissies must be made to submit to training."

Hyphenated American an active force against America. Hyphenated means done Belgium great crime since close of Napoleon's conquests.

It's right to furnish arms to policemen who put down the thug and burglar. Let us encourage munition makers so we may be able to hold our own when peril comes to us in our turn.

Peril will come if we succeed in persuading great military nations that we are not prepared to undertake defensive war.

The man who believes in peace at any price should instantly move to China. It is indefensible for any free man in a free republic to state he will stand by any official, right or wrong, or by any ex-official.

The former president condemned the government for having "not taken the smallest step in the way of preparedness to defend our own rights." Germany, he condemned as "utterly brutal and ruthless in its disregard of international morality" and declared that it "would be a base abandonment of morality" for American manufacturers of munitions of war to refuse to make shipments "for the use of the armies that are striving to restore Belgium to its own people."

Munition makers who refused to make such shipments should be put, he said, on a "roll of dishonor." He added that they should be encouraged, "so that we may be able to hold our own when the hour of peril comes to us in our turn."

ROB EMBASSY ATTACHE

TWO DRESS SUIT CASES, THE PROPERTY OF BARON STEPHEN HEDRY DE HEDRI, RIFLED

PITTSFIELD, Aug. 26.—Two dress suit cases belonging to Baron Stephen Hedry De Hedri, attache of the Austro-Hungarian embassy which has summer headquarters in Lenox, were rifled in the Lenox railroad station and a double breasted coat, a gray coat and trousers, a golf suit and a safety razor are missing.

Jewels belonging to himself and Mme. De Hedri, said to be worth several hundred dollars, were left untouched in the bottom of the cases. Whether the thieves missed them or whether they were looking for papers of value to the enemies of Austria, is a mystery.

IMMENSE LOSS IN JAMAICA

Havoc By Recent Hurricane Not Half Told At First—90 Per Cent of Northern Banana Crop Destroyed

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Detailed advice received here yesterday from Kingston, Jam., show that the damage caused on the northern side of the island of Jamaica by the hurricane which raged there on Aug. 12 and 13 was greater in numerous instances than indicated by earlier dispatches.

The terrific winds felled acres of banana trees, destroying fully 90 per cent of the banana crop, according to the information.

The railway between Port Antonio and Bay Bay was practically all wiped out and wagon roads along the coast were destroyed by the heavy rains.

From Ocho-Rios, Mulgrave, Hope Bay, Port Morant and Montego Bay general damage to crops, buildings, wharves, railways and roads was reported. Many small craft were blown ashore during the height of the storm.

While the loss of life does not appear to have been large, several of the coast points reported one or more persons drowned or killed by falling buildings.

The coconut plantations escaped with small damage, even in the parish of Portland, where the greatest force of the hurricane was felt. Coffee and pimento cultivations were seriously damaged at certain points. The growers are reported to have already undertaken to restore their plantations, and another banana crop is promised within 10 months.

COSTA GIVES NINE MONTHS

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Michael Costa, one of the Italians arrested Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, after the riot at the Commonwealth pier, was sentenced to nine months in the house of correction yesterday by Judge Logan in the South Boston court on a charge of assault and battery on Patrolman Peterson of division 6, South Boston.

Costa denied the charge and had four other witnesses to corroborate his testimony. Patrolman Peterson and Special Officer Nash gave positive testimony against him.

KILLED BY 30-FOOT FALL

W. P. NELSON WAS ON LADDER ATTACHING DANGERS TO CABLE OVER RAILROAD WHEN POLE SAUNPED

WOBURN, Aug. 26.—Waldeman Peter Nelson, aged 32, an employee of the Boston & Maine, sustained injuries in a fall on the tracks near Boutwell's bridge yesterday afternoon, from which he died an hour later.

Nelson was attaching new danglers which are suspended over the rails to warn brakemen of the proximity of a bridge. His ladder rested on the cable that is stretched over the track, when one of the poles to which the cable is attached snapped, throwing him to the rails, thirty feet below so that he was also struck in the chest by the heavy iron pole which dropped on his prostrate body.

Fellow workmen found him unconscious. Train No. 210, which reached the spot about 2.30 was flagged and the injured man was placed on board but at Winchester he was taken out and placed in the baggage room, where a local physician pronounced him dead.

Nelson lived with his wife and four children at 3 Holden place.

LOT FOUR

Lot Four is a very attractive corner lot that has both size and mature development, a total area of 8750 sq. ft. of land, a frontage of 75 ft. on Middlesex street, a frontage of 120 ft. on Stevens street, a uniform depth of 120 ft., a width at the rear of 50 ft., very little labor attention will provide a rich even surface lawn over the entire lot, there are more than twenty thrifty young fruit trees, several shade and ornamental trees, etc., it is well set off from Stevens street by hedge and shrubbery. Length the whole structure is a high posted cellar with cement walls—formerly used for vegetable storage; the two story annex at the southerly corner was formerly used for deer and poultry; there are also two single story buildings—one 20x10 and the other 16x11 ft.—now partially upon or very close to the southerly boundary line of Lot Five which are to be included in the sale thereof—notice is hereby given that said buildings are reserved from the sale of Lot Six.
